SAN SIMEON, Cal., Feb. 18.

"TO ME the moon does not look as you have painted it," said the lady to Whistle. "No," said he, "Don't you wish it did?"

Even 'Whistler's' imagination could not invent such a sky as you saw looking over the Pacific, 1,000 feet up the hill of the "enchanted summit" at 4 o'clock yesterday morning.

A CURTAIN of stars drops down almost to the ocean's edge, as though separating America from Asia. And below the stars, right on the water, hangs a small, sickle-shaped moon, blood red.

"I've seen all kinds of moons, driving at night," said "Whistle" McAninch, who drives for Steve Zegar, "but that's a new one on me."

He drives carefully in the moonlight-starlight "because there are fifty bison in this field and I'm not supposed to hit one."

ONE of the fifty, shedding and shaggy, crosses the road and bounds up a steep bank as agile as a rabbit. With unlimited pasture, water and rock salt, no Indians to annoy them or wolves to bite their calves, these are happy bison, convinced, probably, that they are the favored herd of the Great Spirit.

AT San Luis Obispo, 52 miles from here, where the Southern Pacific "Lark" leaves you at 2 a. m., a tired man is drinking water, at the wheel of a Pontiac.

"That's Buck Hoover," says McAninch, "You'll notice that he's chained to his wheel."

HE IS indeed, having undertaken to break world records by driving one hundred hours, without food or sleep—water allowed.

"He can stand what no other man can stand, because his heart beats faster than any other heart," says McAninch, hero worshiper. "He has been driving 48 hours now and I think he'll make it."

BUCK HOOVER, Texas cowboy and ambulance driver at the front in the big war, finds life dull in peace, so he tries this.

The American Legion, keeping track of his 100-hour "stunt" will raffle off the Pontiac at a dance later. Buck will share the excess profits, also Richfield oil and Firestone tires used in the 100-hour grind will contribute something.

SO BUCK HOOVER will get, perhaps, $1,000 for taking ten years off his life. A modern Ixion, chained to the wheel, his courage and ambition to excel, are strange[illegible]

But chauffeurs and brakemen, and the tall girl with yellow hair who answers "you bet" when you ask for coffee, all admire him. He'll get more praise than he would have got had a piece of shrapnel split his head while he drove a war ambulance.

Buck Hoover and the Pacific at night make outside news seem trivial, but it must be mentioned.

AMERICAN nations at Havana agree to "outlaw aggressive war on these American continents." What IS aggressive war is the other nations "war" of course. No modern nation ever fought, without calling it "self-defense."

THE Prince of Wales shakes hands, by mistake, with a waiter, best dressed man, probably, at a business men's dinner.

"But, sir, I'm only a waiter."

"I don't see that that makes any difference," says the Prince, shaking hands over again.

THE tyrant was annoyed when Solon told him there could be good government, "only when kings become philosophers, or philosophers become kings." The young Prince leaves philosophy to professors.

But he knows that royalties achieve permanency by becoming democratic.

LINDBERGH returns from his exhausting trip, worn and visibly aged. What he does is Lindbergh's business—even should he decide to continue risks and "stunts" until he kills himself.

BUT the public hopes he will realize that his value to America does not consist in "stunt" flying.

Napoleon was not ashamed to promise the French people that he would not expose himself to danger, or go too near the front.

At the bridge of Arcola and elsewhere he had proved his reckless courage, as Lindbergh proved his in that ocean flight.

OUR lawmakers have about decided that the way to enforce prohibition is to put real and deadly poison in all alcohol sold legally. That sounds more like the Borgias than like your loving Uncle Sam. Why not leave alcohol poisoning to bootleggers? They do it very nicely.

LOS ANGELES police authorities will fine every policeman that fails to make fewer than three arrests in so many days.

In the good old English days of Henry the Second, under the law of the "hundreds," somebody had to be responsible for every murder. When a corpse was found within the territory of a certain "hundred," the hundred good men and true had to produce the murderer or pay heavy fines. They usually produced a murderer. The Los Angeles police will produce their three arrests as ordered.

Bomber Terrorizes Mine War Village

DYNAMITES HOUSE, 2 ESCAPE

FINLEYVILLE, Pa., Feb. 18.—State troopers and Washington county authorities today sought a short, stubby man who late last night spread terror through Venetia, a mining hamlet two miles west of here. The stranger bombed the home of Harry Barnes, 32, a non-union coal miner, and then fled under cover of a blinding snowstorm. The Barnes family escaped unhurt.

Today further violence in the coal strike was guarded against by state police from Monongahela and Library.

Barnes, working at the Eclipse Gas Coal Company mine, had returned home late last evening and had been in the house only a short time when his wife told him that she saw a man prowling about the house. Then Mrs. Barnes detected the odor of the dynamite fuse burning. An instant later the house was shattered by a terrific blast. One wall was destroyed and the splintered remnants of the porch hurled 100 yards away.

Barnes' father, 61, was hurled from his bed at his home more

NAME 5 TO OPEN COAL PROBE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—A sub-committee of five Senators to take testimony in the Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia coal fields, as part of the senatorial investigation of conditions there, was named today by Chairman Watson of the Interstate Commerce Committee as follows:

Couzens (Rep.), Michigan; Wagner (Dem.), New York; Wheeler (Dem.), Montana; Metcalf (Rep.), Rhode Island, and Gooding (Rep.), Idaho.

Couzens protested his appointment, declaring there is no need for a sub-committee to go to the scene of the strike. He said he would not be a party to what he called the "hippodrome."

Wheeler, however, urged that the committee go as soon as possible to the coal fields to gather first-hand information.

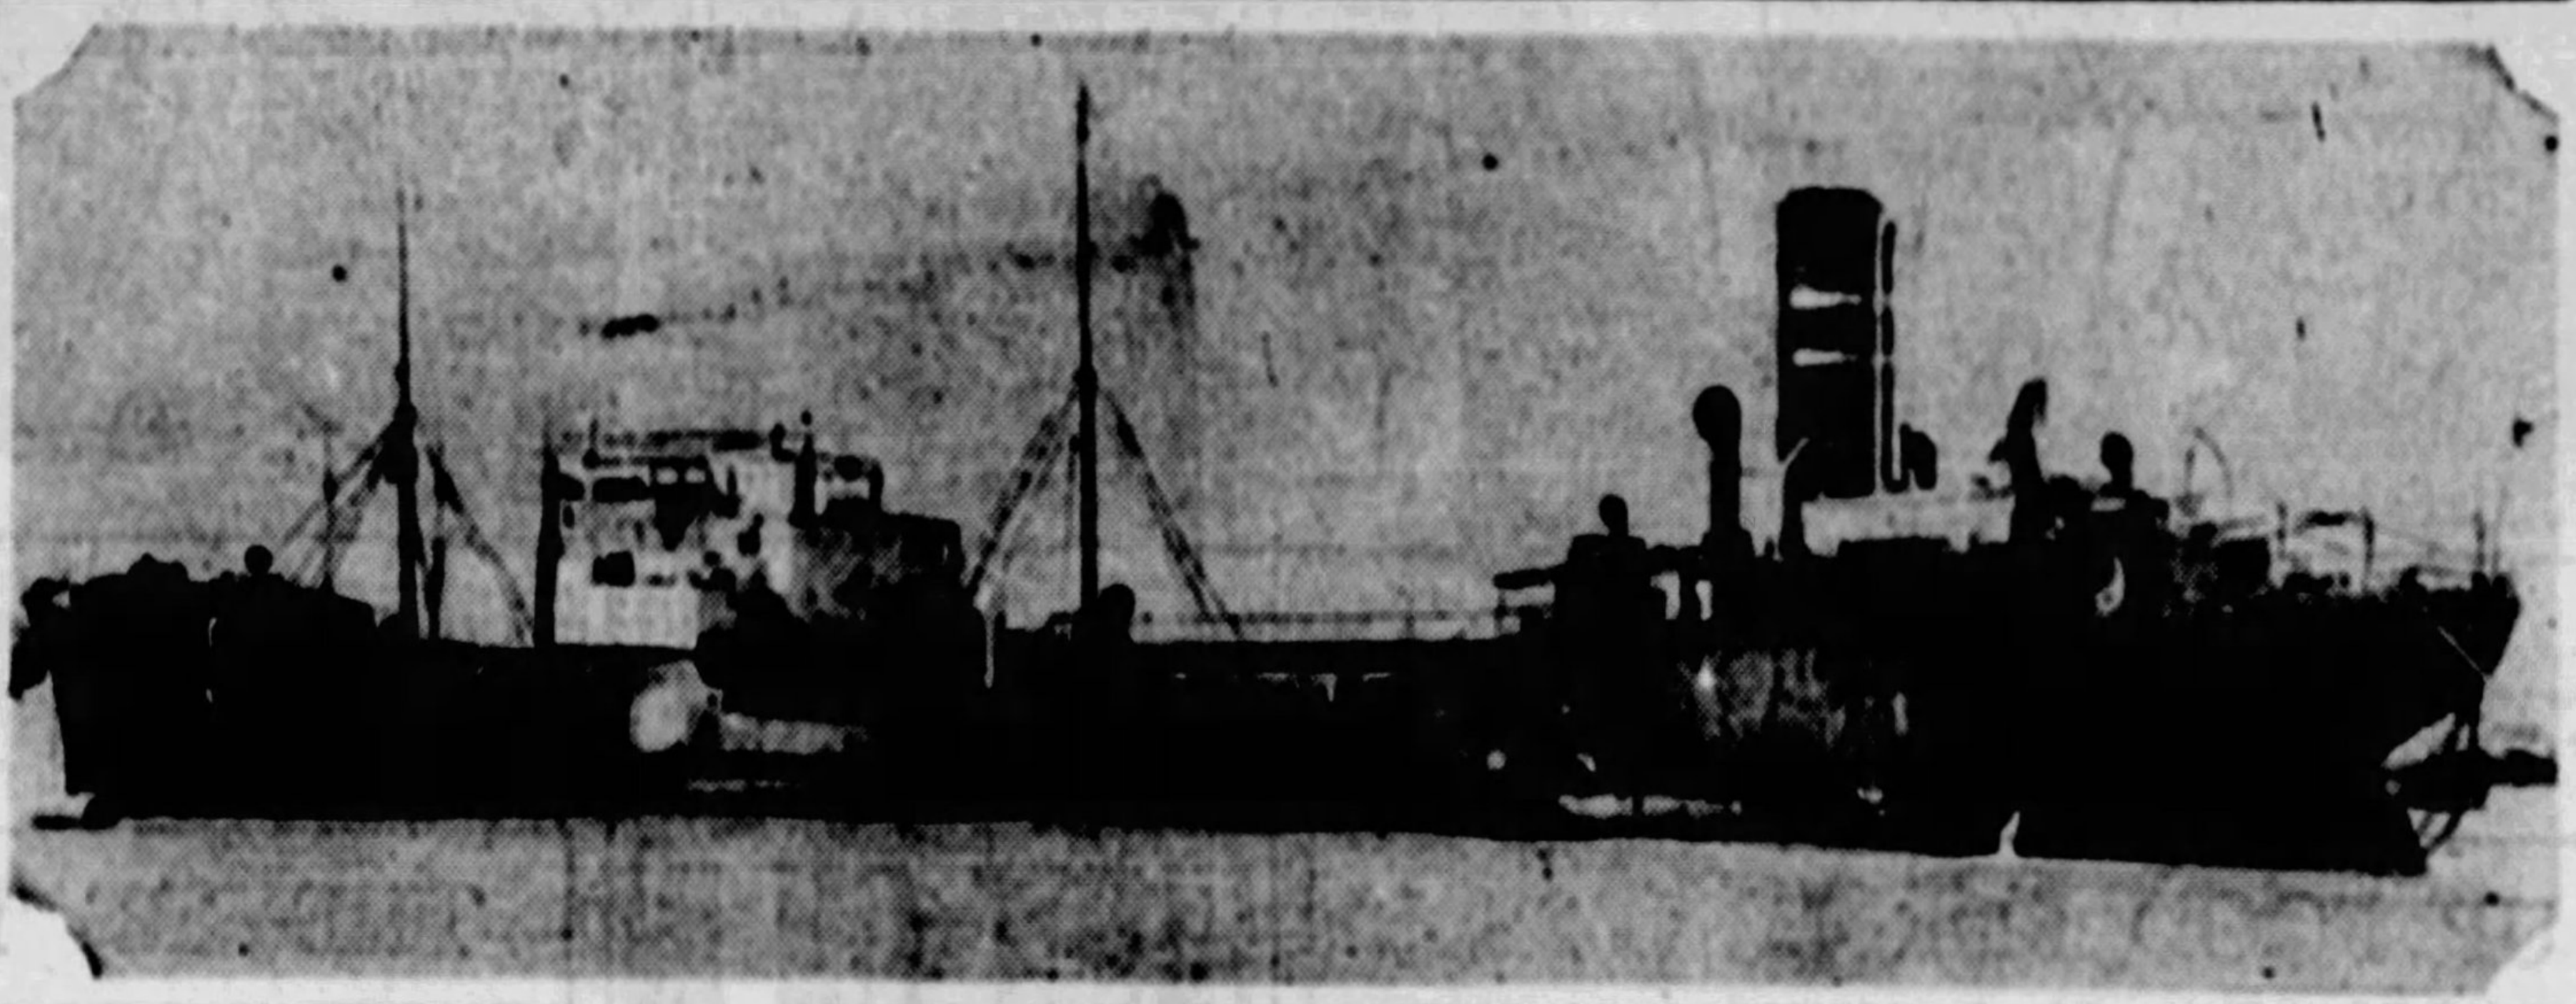
Ship on Which 15 Were Killed



AMERICAN TANKER EXPLODES AT SEA

After a hazardous passage in lifeboats over a sea spread with blazing oil, 21 members of the crew of the American tank steamer Chuky were reported safe in Yokohama today. The ship exploded Wednesday about 100 miles southeast of Cape Noshima, while en-route from San Pedro, Cal., to Yokohama. The captain and 14 others were either killed or drowned. After rowing for 26 hours on the open sea, the 21 survivors were picked up by the Japanese fishing trawler Matsuchi and brought to Japan. The survivors said oil poured from the burning tanker and spread over the sea, making the launching of lifeboats a hazardous task. They were unable to give the cause of the explosion. The crew in the open lifeboat suffered from cold and exposure, but the boat was well-stocked with biscuits and water. A boat sent out from the Yokosuka Naval Station returned from the scene of the explosion and reported that nothing had been found there. Those killed or drowned were listed as Capt. C. Hermes, First Mate Kellogg, Second Mate Carlstrom, Third Mate Rasmussen, Wireless Operator Lester J. Honstra, Oiler J. MacDonald, Philadelphia; Chief Steward Lee; Mess Boys Ben Marte and Pagayeen; Fireman Boyle, and Sailors B. Broman, Portland, Me.; R. Falcon, Jersey City, N. J., R. J. McDermott, Philadelphia; Gardner and Ballard. Those rescued were Chief Engineer J. L. Sheehan, First Assistant Engineer F. H. Buckley, Lucerne, Pa.; Second Assistant Engineer C. C. Herbert, Third Assistant Engineer Eugene Ritchley and Crew Members J. R. Hughes, Little Rock, Ark.; P. E. Cassidy, Philadelphia; S. J. Dreyfuss, New London, Conn.; J. L. Leslie, Rochester, N. Y.; E. REED AND REED CLASH IN LAKE CARGO ROW

By FASER EDWARDS,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Several senators from the so-called "border" states served as weather vanes in the Senate yesterday, indicating the political winds in West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia are blowing in the direction of Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri.

A significant political discussion arose after Reed had denounced the decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission in the famous "lake cargo coal case," which involves the greatest economic issue today in the "border states."

It came on the eve of Reed's departure for a campaign tour of the wide-open spaces of the Southwest and up to the Pacific coast to further his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination. The political note was injected by Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania, whose state is at war with the "border" states over the decision.

In measured terms, the Missourian declared the Interstate Commerce Commission had exceeded its authority in the "lake cargo case" and rendered a "dangerous and revolutionary decision," giving Pennsylvania coal fields an unfair advantage over the Southern coal regions in the matter of railroad rates.

The Pennsylvanian sprang to the defense of the commission and declared the decision was not unjust but merely gave the Pennsylvania coal fields an opportunity to compete with Southern rivals.

Senators Neely, of West Virginia; Barkley, of Kentucky; Glass, of Virginia, and McKellar, of Tennessee rallied to the support of the Missourian. Glass severely criticized Dave Reed for intimating that Jim

Plane Up In Endurance Attempt

Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

IMPERIAL, Cal., Feb. 18.—The giant monoplane "Albatross" took the air at 6:45 a. m. today in an attempt to wrest the world's endurance flight record from Germany. It was the second start within a week for Pilots Alvin K. Peterson and Charles F. Rocheville, of the Zenith Aircraft Corporation, and Jack Reid, of San Diego, Cal., Navy flier on leave of absence.

The plane, which has a wing spread of 90 feet, sailed down the runway of the Imperial county airport, carrying a load of 12,754 pounds, to establish a new mark for lifting. The ship carried 1,300 gallons of fuel.

DOZENS HURLED IN BAY

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 18.—(AP.)—At least eight persons were missing today when police and rescuers checked their reports in an effort to ascertain the number of casualties in the accident to the ferry boat Peralta, from whose decks an unknown number of passengers were swept into San Francisco Bay.

Revised figures showed that eight persons believed to have been on the boat last night when her passenger-laden prow dipped into the bay, today had failed to return to their homes. The number of passengers swept into the water was undetermined and investigators were without any means of checking. Estimates of passengers were that from 30 to 100 persons were plunged overboard. The official list showed 17 had been rescued.

What caused submerging of the forward part of the boat as she sped toward Oakland with a heavy load of commuters during the evening rush hour likewise remained undetermined.

FAIL TO FIND BODIES

Six persons originally reported missing returned to their homes during the night. Search of the bay up to daybreak failed to reveal any bodies. State, federal and harbor officials made an early start on their inquiries, but no new evidence of what caused the accident was uncovered at the outset.

The big electric-driven ferry, operating between San Francisco and Oakland for the Key Route Transit System, was nearing its East Bay destination during the rush hour last night when the accident occurred. Although the ferry was not

PASTOR-BARBER GONE FROM TARENTUM

The Rev. S. C. Calhoun, who not only serves as pastor of a Freeport church, but also conducts a barber shop in Tarentum, has disappeared.

In his barber shop his son-in-law found a terse note of three words: "I'm going away."

The Rev. Calhoun left his home in Tarentum to drive to Sarver, where he was scheduled to occupy the pulpit in the Free Methodist Church. He didn't arrive there.

Mrs. Calhoun said she was bewildered by her husband's disappearance and that she could not think of a possible motive.

FRIGID WAVE DUE AS RECORD SNOW HITS CITY

A three-inch snowfall, heaviest of the winter, blanketing the city today, is the forerunner of a cold wave that will sweep on Pittsburgh tonight and send the thermometer down to a frigid 10 degrees.

Snow flurries likely will continue tonight and tomorrow, Forecaster W. S. Brotzman said. This means that the best coasting of the season will be available to the city's youth, but that the snow shovels will have to be dragged out to save pedestrians.

Frigid weather will continue tomorrow, but a warming up will be felt Monday. The temperature today lingered around 30, but is scheduled for a rapid drop tonight.

Superintendent of Police Peter P. Walsh today made a big hit with youngsters owning unused Christmas sleds when he ordered inspectors in each police district to rope off certain streets for coasters. The superintendent also ordered inspectors to notify business houses and residents that the snow must be cleared off the walks within 24 hours after the fall ends. Arrests, on charges of violating a city ordinance, will be made in cases where the order is not obeyed, Walsh said.

Ralph Schuger, Leo Rothenberg and Joseph Rich, other members of the committee, will take part in the distribution Sunday morning.

BOMBHOME OF JUDGE

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—(INS.)—A fresh campaign of bomb terrorism was feared today following attacks on the home of a municipal court judge and on a garage which is said to be the hangout of alcohol peddlers and gangsters.

A building, housing the undertaking establishment of Sbarbaro & Co., over which lives Municipal Judge John A. Sbarbaro, a partner in the firm, was damaged to the extent of $10,000 by a powerful dynamite bomb, set off shortly before midnight.

Judge Sbarbaro and his wife, occupying the second floor apartment, were thrown from their beds by the concussion. They escaped serious injury.

The bombed garage, located 17 blocks from the Sbarbaro place, was badly damaged by a similar charge of dynamite. Surrounding property was also severely damaged.

Judge Sbarbaro was unable to advance any motive for the attack on his place, other than possible enmity he had incurred through his work on the bench.

It was just three weeks ago that similar attacks were made on the homes of two other men high in the administration ranks of Mayor William Hale Thompson. They were City Comptroller Charles C. Fitzmorris and Dr. William H. Reid.

Authorities held the opinion that the attack on Judge Sbarbaro's home was another expression against the Thompson administration.

SPEAKERS BOOST CHAUTAUQUA

Characterizing the Chautauqua institution as a cross-section of the best of American democracy and educationally and esthetically a part of America's intellectual park system, Bishop Francis J. McConnell, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, complimented the more than 400 Pittsburghers who gathered at a dinner in the William Penn Hotel last night.

The dinner followed the annual meeting of the board of trustees of the institution, held yesterday afternoon in the hotel at which President Arthur E. Bestor presented his annual report and outlined, in part, the program for the present season. Plans for the development of the institution's ground and important new buildings were discussed and approved.

"The Chatauqua Institution and idea," explained Bishop McConnell, "stands somewhere between that ultra-practical and coldly efficient American phase of life and the other extreme of life in this country in which people aim for a 'kick' out of things—an emotional thrill. The Chautauqua Institution is a genuinely appreciative atmosphere and we need it in our life. It offers the best in American culture."

Dr. George W. Gerwig, secretary of the Pittsburgh Board of Education, and a member of the board of trustees of Chautauqua, praised the institution highly.

Announcement was made of a donation of $100,000 from Mrs. O. W. Norton, of Chicago, for the erection of a new recital hall at Chautauqua, given in memory of her husband and daughter.

Dr. C. Wallace Petty, of the First Baptist Church, was toastmaster at the dinner.

than a hundred yards from his son's house, and is suffering from shock.

The escape of the Barnes family was due only to the fact that the bomber had placed the charge under the front of the house and had run the fuse line back to the rear, so that Mrs. Barnes detected the burning fuse and both she and her husband managed to escape. Afterward Barnes and his wife saw the dynamiter running in the direction of Finleyville. Barnes pursued him for short distance then returned to determine the damage to his house. When the hunt was resumed, snow had covered the man's tracks.

HUNT ON IN WEST FOR HEIRESS

By International News Service.

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—The search for Frances St. John Smith, missing New York heiress and college co-ed, turned with startling abruptness to Chico, Cal., today.

Three men, who observed a girl in or about the Southern Pacific Depot here, declared they are positive she answers the description of the titian-haired beauty who vanished January 13 and has been the object of a nation-wide hunt since.

The girl, who they describe as nervous and very much upset when she observed a newspaper photograph of Mrs. St. John Smith, mother of the missing co-ed, bought a ticket for Sacramento in an electric depot late yesterday.

She alighted from a Southern Pacific train, idled around the room and told curious attendants she was waiting for her husband, "C. N. Lee." Later she asked the way to the stage depot, but finally purchased an electric line ticket.

Whether she took the train could not be established.

REED AND REED CLASH

Reed's argument had a political significance.

"Didn't the Senator detect any political purpose in the address of the Senator from Missouri?" demanded Dave Reed.

"No, I ddn't discover any," replied Glass, and several Senators laughed.

The Missourian hotly denied that he had any political motive in pointing out a decision of the commission, which he declared "demands the attenton of Congress." He then accused Dave Reed of about-facing on Senator-elect Vare, of Pennsylvania, He said that Dave Reed after denouncing Vare as "unfit to be Senator" in the primary, supported Vare in the election. To that Dave replied that he had merely said Vare was "not qualified."

Wth Pennsylvana and the border states in a death struggle for the coal trade, there is little doubt of Reed getting the support of the "border" states in the Democratic convention after espousing the cause which means their industrial life.

Reed went into the long history of the "lake cargo case." He told how a decision just to both the Pennsylvania and the southern coal fields had been reversed after Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, had succeeded in having the commission "stacked" wth men favorable to Pennsylvania's side of the freight rate controversy.

The Missourian warned that the same practice could be applied to the Supreme Court, and decisions of the high tribunal reversed after it had been "packed" with men favorable to some particular litigant.

DOZENS IN BAY

filled to its capacity—4,000 persons—a large crowd was aboard. Many of these had gathered on the lower forward deck.

DOZENS SWEPT OVERBOARD

Suddenly the ferry lurched downward and the scores of passengers in the bow found themselves submerged in the cold salt water. Dozens were washed overboard. Pandemonium broke loose among the others because they thought the ferry was going down. Women knelt on the decks and prayed, while the men attacked lockers filled with life preservers. The air was filled with the cries of those struggling in the water and the screams of women and children on the decks.

The Peralta's crew was ordered to the lifeboats as the big ferry settled back on an even keel. Men passengers threw life preservers to those in the water. The ferry Hayward, which was passing the scene, launched lifeboats, as did the naval training station at Goat Island, which is but a few hundred yards from the scene of the accident.

RESCUERS HANDICAPPED

Because of the confusion it was several minutes before lifeboats were able to function. The choppy waters of the bay were strewn with coats, hats and bits of wreckage. Rescuers, handicapped by rapidly falling twilight, were able to locate persons in the water only with the greatest difficulty.

The Hayward rescued seven persons and the Navy rescue party picked up five or six. Others were taken in by the lifeboats from the Peralta. Whether any of the luckless passengers swam the 300 or 400 yards to Goat Island or the several hundred yards to the Key Route pier in Oakland was doubtful, as none had been found this morning.

Although the cause of the affair remained in question, the general opinion was that the ship had become bow heavy with passengers eager to be first ashore and had dipped into the sea in a downward motion between swells.

FIRE CAPTAIN QUITS TO DELAY SENTENCE

Charles F. Golden, North Side fire captain, convicted of election fraud, who yesterday was ordered by the court to resign from the fire department if he wished to postpone imposition of sentence for one week, tendered his resignation from the fire bureau Thursday, it was reported yesterday.

Attorney Charles B. Prichard appeared before Judge Harry H. Rowand in Criminal Court yesterday and asked for a postponement of sentence to give Golden time to resign and remove his effects from the fire house as well as to arrange other business. Judge Rowand said that he would defer sentence until next Friday if Golden resigned from the department within 24 hours, but if this was not done the fireman would be sentenced Monday afternoon.

J. William Bolster, convicted with Golden on charges of conspiracy, false count and false return and failure to deliver ballots and records, and Mrs. Anna Conklin, convicted of false count and return, will be sentenced with Golden next Friday.

FACES TRIAL AS MAIL THIEF

Franklin S. Searle, former railway mail postal clerk, yesterday was brought from Harrisburg to Pittsburgh for trial on an indictment charging him with having stolen a large number of government pension checks from the mail and with having forged them. He will be tried Monday in Federal District Court.

Searle is under federal indictment for the alleged theft of the checks from a mail pouch June 1, 1926. The theft was said to have occurred between Baltimore and Harrisburg.

COAL BARON DIES; FOUL PLAY SEEN

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Mystery today surrounded the death of Robert Livingston Ireland, 60, wealthy ship owner and "coal baron," in his apartment here. Ireland was related to Mark Hanna, former United States senator and campaign manager of President McKinley.

lthough the medical examiner pronounced the case a suicide, detectives suspected foul play. They pointed out that five bullets entered Ireland's body and that he would have had to use his left hand to pull the trigger. The shots appeared to have been deflected downward from the left collarbone in the direction of the heart.

Two revolvers were found on a dresser at the foot of the bed, upon which Ireland was lying. One revolver had not been used recently.

The body was found by the victim's wife, Mrs. Esther Wood Ireland, upon her return from a shopping tour. She told detectives her husband might have killed himself, but could not advance any reason for his act except the fact that he had been despondent because of heart trouble during the past year.

Police were puzzled because Ireland left no farewell note. They expressed the opinion that if he had contemplated suicide, he would have written such a note to his wife or to his children, Robert L. Ireland, Jr., and Elizabeth Ireland, of Cleveland, O.

Ireland was for years one of the outstanding figures in American shipping, having brought about in 1899, in conjunction with others, consolidation of all the shipbuilding interests on the Great Lakes, the combination being known as the American Shipbuilding Company.

In 1894 Ireland married Kate Benedict Hanna, niece of Mark Hanna, and the couple were divorced a year before his marriage to Miss Wood.

In 1903 he resigned his shipping post to become a member of the Cleveland firm of M. A. Hanna & Co.

Pains Disappear, Mrs. Coolidge Almost Well

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Mrs. Coolidge, who has been confined to her room more than two weeks by illness, is reported to be greatly improved. The neuralgic pain in her right side has ceased, it was said, and she feels entirely well.

BLIZZARD KILLS 1 IN CHICAGO, SCORES HURT

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—(INS.)—After 17 February days of spring mildness, Chicago today trudged to work in eight inches of snow and in the teeth of a Northwest gale that sent the mercury well below freezing.

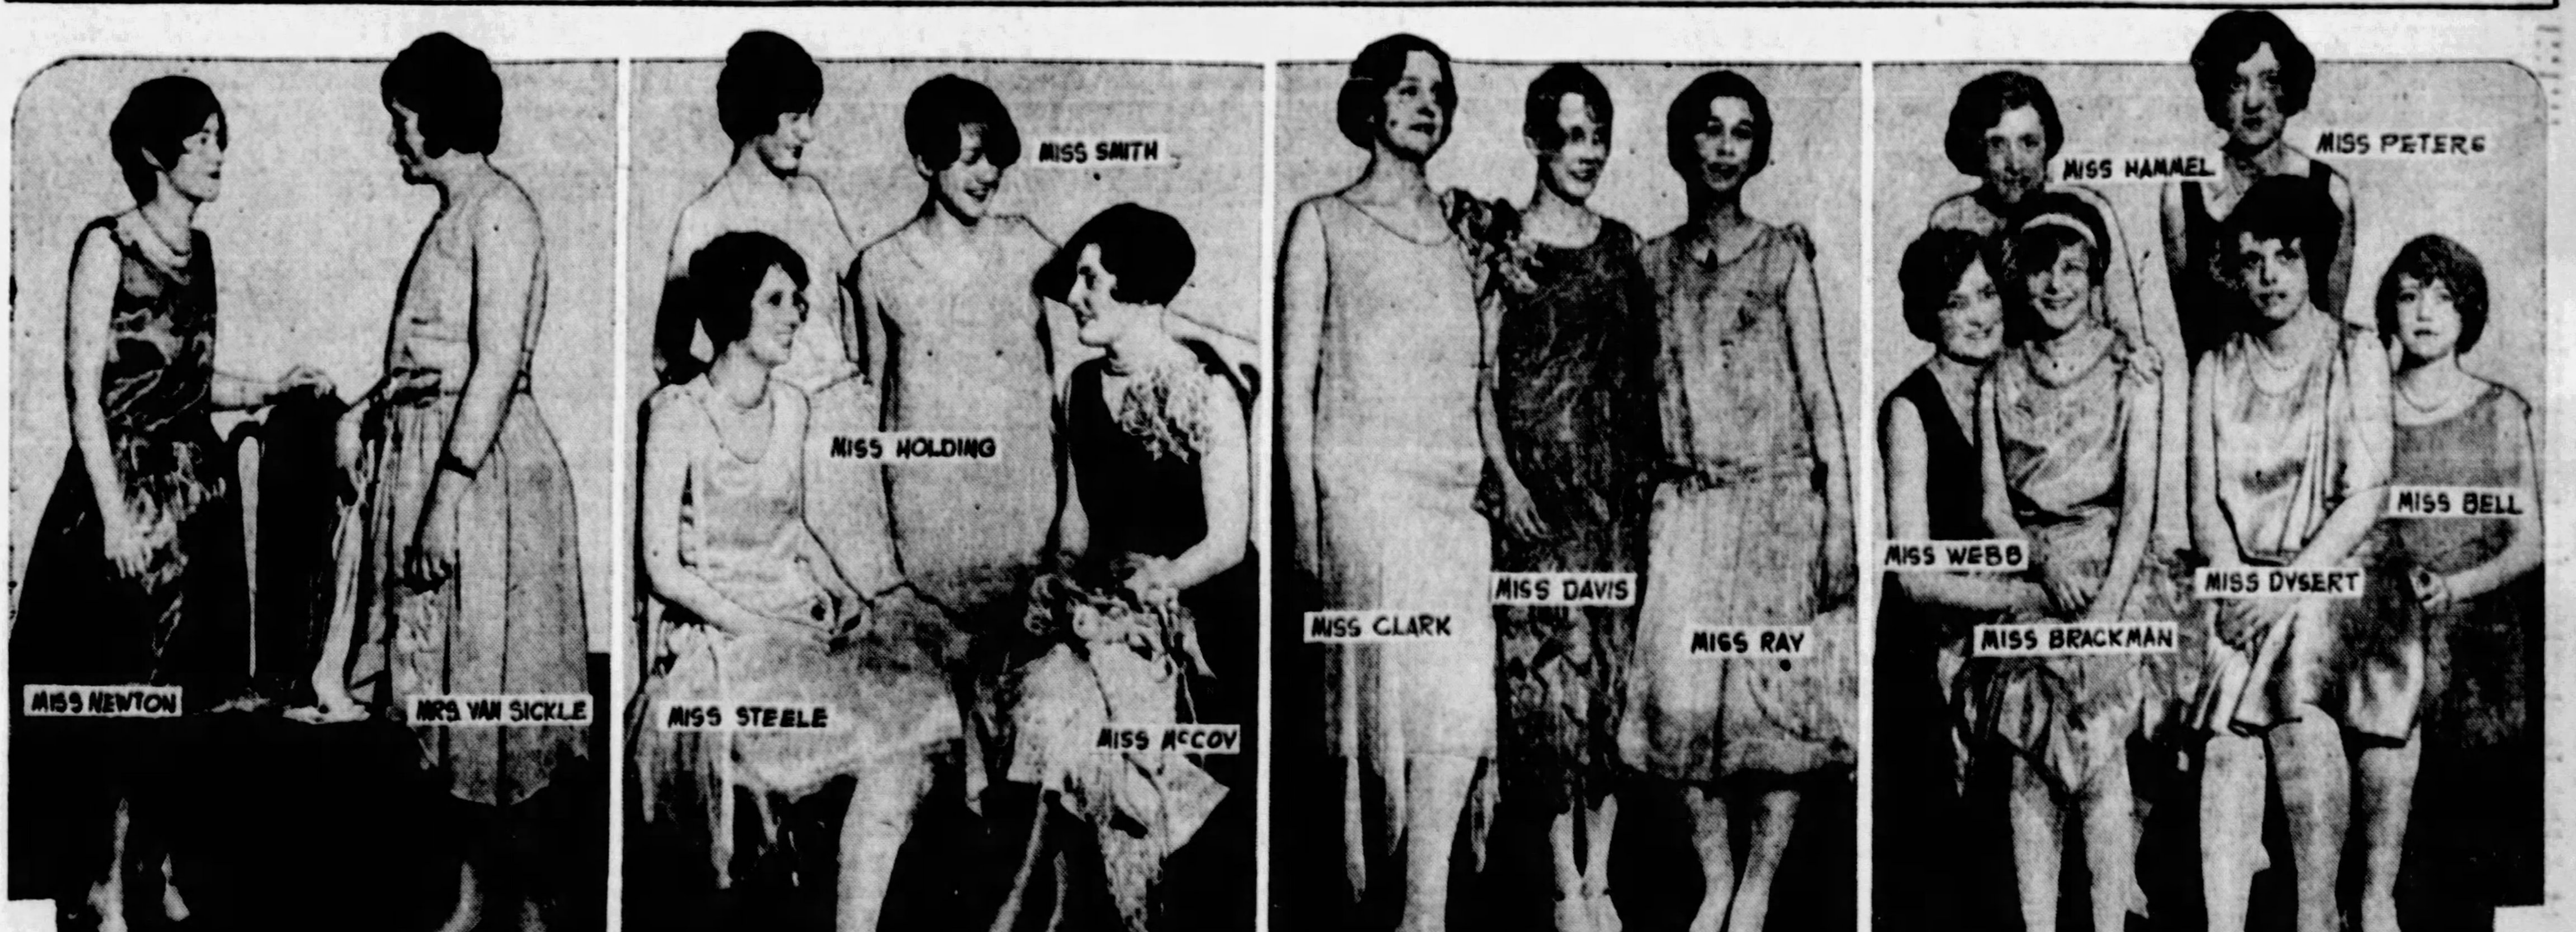
Theb lizzard, the second worst of the winter, struck Chicago yesterday noon. Snow, which began falling at that time, continued throughout the night. Thousands of laborers worked all night in an effort to keep the lanes of traffic open.

Traffic accidents of all kinds resulted from the storm. One man was killed and several injured in a collision in the switching yards of the belt line, the blinding snow obscured the vision of the engineers. Several pedestrians were knocked down in the streets by automobiles while the blizzard raged at its height.

Two street cars and a taxicab were partially demolished in a three-way collision at a street intersection. The chauffeur and three passengers on one of the street cars were injured. Snow-clogged tracks derailed another street car, throwing 75 passengers into a panic.

The blizzard and heavy snowfall was general over the Middle West.

HUNDREDS ATTEND -:- UNIVERSITY OF PITTSBURGH'S -:- JUNIOR PROM



EFFECTIVE DECORATIONS LEND CHARM TO ANNUAL COLLEGIATE FUNCTION

Massed palms and ferns in the center of the William Penn Hotel's ballroom floor was the basic motif of charming decorations for the annual University of Pittsburgh junior prom last night. John K. Graeff was chairman of the committee in charge of the dance and he led the grand march with Evelyn Newton. Mrs. Clarence L. Van Sickle, faculty chaperone, is shown in the first picture talking to Miss Newton. Just to prove that the Pitt boys can still pick them and that the Pitt co-eds have lost none of their attractiveness the photographer snapped Dorothy Steele, Amber McCoy, Laura Anne Holding, Jane Smith, Verna Dean Webb, Marie Brackman, Kathryn Dysert, Marie Bell, Louis Hammel, Mary Peters, Betty Clark, Dorothy Davis and Mary Ray, in between dances.

The Plays — Stage and Screen — And Players
THE PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH

John Gilbert Seeks Variety; To Do Convict Role in Screen Version of Broadway Drama

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS,
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 18.

I HAVE always maintained that John Gilbert has an exploratory mind. There is no role that he will not experiment with once. A very wise thing in this business where so many of our players suffer from a similarity of pictures.

"Four Walls," purchased for him by Harry Rapf on his recent trip to New York, offers something entirely new. Dana Burnet and George Abbott, authors, have built their story on the old verse: "Four walls do not a prison make." Mr. Gilbert will play a young man who serves a prison term and is eternally tormented by criminals who want to make him return to his old life.

David Wark Griffith, just back from New York, is concentrating on his cast for "The Battle of the Sexes." Yesterday he made up his mind that Belle Bennett was the type for one of the leading characters.

"Drums of Love," by the way, has received editorial notices in several of our highbrow magazines. That pleased D. W. and amused him as well, for he has been the target in the past for some of the intelligentsia who have spoken of his proneness to sentimentality.

The rumor that United Artists is making arrangements to sign Cecil DeMille to make pictures is again current. I suppose one reason it is so red hot now is because Neil McCarthy, Cecil DeMille's lawyer, spent a whole day on the U. A. lot, and the next day Joseph Schenck lunched with Cecil DeMille at the DeMille studios.

A romance that is being much talked about in Hollywood these days is that of Norma Shearer's sister, Mrs. Athole Ward who is to marry Howard Hawks, the Fox director. Their marriage is set for a month hence. The Hawks' boys will become bridegrooms about the same time, Kenneth Hawks and Mary Astor already having announced their intentions of taking the fatal step later this month. The Ward-Hawks nuptials will not be celebrated until Mr. Hawks finishes a picture he is directing at Fox.

A telegram received from Eddie Sutherland, dated Wasatch, Utah, contains the thrilling announcement that the airplane carrying Eddie to the East overturned at Wasatch. Having just signed Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, he decided to celebrate by flying to New York to see some new plays. Other people have taken the airplane route with safety, so Eddie figured he wasn't going to be the only one who never traveled by air. At Wasatch (Did you ever hear of the town? I never did), or somewhere near this town, the plane overturned and Eddie landed in the heavy snow. He says he was uninjured, and I suppose he was, else he wouldn't have been able to send the telegram.

"Enemy" Vigil Parallel to Puccini's

The heart gripping night vigil in Puccini's "Madame Butterfly" has a parallel in "The Enemy", Lillian Gish's new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer vehicle coming Monday to the Penn, in which, under the direction of Fred Niblo, the suspense of a night vigil has almost the same effect, though the situation is one entirely different.

In the picture, based on Channing Pollock's play, Pauli The Heroine, the role played by Miss Gish, and Carl, her lover, are married on the eve of his call to the front during the war. Their last hours together are before the dawn that hurries him away with his troops. All night they sit, watching the relentless hands of the clock, ever moving toward their separation, perhaps forever.

As worked out in the screen play, this vigil in the dark is one of its most powerful dramatic touches.

The new picture is a story of Austria during and after the war, in which Miss Gish plays the daughter of a university professor, who sees her family torn apart by war hatreds and the hysteria of battle times. The play, on the stage, was hailed as one of the drama's greatest contributions to the cause of international understanding.

Miss Gish and Ralph Forbes head a cast that includes George Fawcett, Frank Currier, Ralph Emerson, Karl Dane, Polly Moran, Frittzi Ridgeway, John Peters and Billy Kent Schaefer.

Demure

MARION DAVIES is a dainty dame in her new starring role in "Quality Street," judging from this portrait of her in character in the photoplay, scheduled for the Aldine, February 27.

STAGE AND FILM PROGRAMS

"Broadway," the current success of the day will be the attraction in the Pitt, beginning Monday night. It will play the usual Pitt matinees, Thursday and Saturday.

The musical comedy, "Oh, Kay", with Julia Sanderson and Frank Crumit in the leading roles, comes to the Alvin Monday. Guy Bolton and P. G. Wodehouse wrote the book and George Gershwin composed the music.

Lenore Ulrich in "Lulu Belle," following three months in Chicago and 18 months in New York, is coming to the Nixon, beginning Monday. Supporting Miss Ulrich will be Frank Thomas, Jack Hartley, William St. James and many others.

Harry Carroll and his vaudeville show, presented under the general title, "Glorifying American Youth," will occupy the Davis stage next week.

George Fawcett, who first played with Lillian Gish in "The Birth Of A Nation," also plays with her in "The Enemy," to be seen in Loew's Penn next week.

Al Tucker and his Society Orchestra are to be the topline attraction in the Harris next week.

Margie Turk, toe dancer, is with Dixon's Big Revue, next week's show in the Academy.

"Beau Sabreur" will be the screen attraction in the Grand next week.

Joseph Schildkraut, has a featured role in Jetta Goudal's "The Forbidden Woman," coming to Loew's Aldine Monday.

"Town Scandals" will be the stock burlesque in the Gayety next week.

Al Jolson, in "The Jazz Singer," will remain in the Olympic for a second week, beginning Monday.

Frank Van Hoven, "The Mad Magician," will be a vaudeville feature in the Sheridan Square next week.

Will Asks Raise; Is Out Two Dinners

NEWTON, Kans. Feb. 18.—Had visits from two of my bosses just before leaving California. Mr. Lorimer, who was out drumming up subscriptions for his Saturday Evening Post, and his charming wife, and two fine grown sons come out to our shack slumming. We settled the Republicans nominations. The next day Mr. Adolph Ochs owner of the New York Times, and his gracious wife and entertaining sister-in-law spent the day with us. We took up the hardships of the Democrats. He thinks of course Al will be nominated and my friend Jessie Jones of Texas for Vice President aided by Mrs. Rogers.

WILL ROGERS

I coyly hinted for a raise from both gentlemen but even socially they are always the business man, so it looks like I just fed two hungry editors for nothing.

Once a sap always a sap.
Yours underpaid.
WILL ROGERS.

FIND VET'S WILL DECADE AFTER HIS DEATH

More than 10 years after his death the will of Thomas H. Elliott, Fair Haven, who was killed in action in France, has come to light and has been filed for probate. His father, William Elliott, whom the son named as executor, has died. In order that the $6,500 estate may be disposed of, letters of administration were about to be taken out by George H. Elliott, of Belle Vernon, the dead man's brother, named executor in the father's will, probated shortly after his death. On the eve of the filing of the letters of administration, James Elliott, of Library, another brother of the dead man, reported the finding of Thomas Elliott's will among papers of the late William Elliott.

WIFE TOO GAY, ASKS DIVORCE

His wife played the races, drank to excess, met other men, associated with men and women of notorious character, charges Harry E. Brooks, broker, 6223 Frankstown avenue, asking a divorce from Olive W. Brooks.

Mr. Brooks told Judge Richard W. Martin it was common for Mrs. Brooks to make trips of eight to 12 months' duration. They were married in 1901. The libellant introduced a statement of his wife's bank deposits of funds which Brooks said he had not given her. Brooks charges his wife with cruel and barbarous treatment and indignities to the person. Brooks was represented by Attorney Dan T. R. Dickson.

BIG SNOW HITS GREENSBURG

GREENSBURG, Pa., Feb. 18.—This section of Westmoreland county is "snowed under" today with a 12-inch fall in the mountains, and six inches in Greensburg. Despite the heavy snow the highway department has kept the roads open with a large force of workmen and plows.

WOMEN HONORING PHOEBE HEARST

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 18.—In every state in the Union, and in every community where there are organized schools, women are paying tribute this month to Mrs. Phoebe Apperson Hearst, of California, and Mrs. Theodore Birney, of Washington, D. C., to whom is due the founding, 31 years ago, of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Every individual parent-teacher association in California—and there are 1,574—is observing founders' day at its February meeting and many of them held special ceremonies yesterday, which marked the day on which the first session of the congress was held.

It was in 1896 that Mrs. Theodore Birney, wife of a prominent lawyer in Washington, D. C., conceived the idea of a national organization which would bring about a sympathetic understanding between parent and teacher, study child welfare and raise the standards of parenthood.

At that time Mrs. Hearst was living in the nation's capital, where Senator Hearst was representing California in Congress. Mrs. Birney knew of Mrs. Hearst's interest in welfare and education. So she took her idea to Mrs. Hearst. As a result the Hearst home was opened to educators, ministers, statesmen and parents who reasoned together—and as a result the National Congress of Parents and Teachers held its first meeting February 17, 1897.

For the first five years Mrs. Hearst financed all of the expenses of the organization, but at the end of that period the congress was able to support itself.

"Mothers' circles" were formed at schools throughout the country wherever there were enterprising spirits. These later became known as parent-teacher organizations, which are today the unit of membership in the national organization. It has become one of the most powerful welfare organizations in the world.

Last year, when the national convention met in Oakland, a tree was planted on the campus of the state university at Berkeley in memory of Mrs. Hearst and Mrs. Birney. This year there is an especial "founders" day ceremony at the university, while the University of California at Los Angeles gives a part of its student paper, "The Bruin," to commemoration of the event.

DIRECTOR CLARK NAMES TWO CITY DETECTIVES

Plainclothesman John Barrett and William Krummenacher of the Twentieth Ward yesterday were appointed city detectives by Director James M. Clark of the Public Safety Department, filling two vacancies in the department. Alderman P. J. Sullivan is said to have backed Barrett and Edward Townsend, superintendent of city property, is said to be responsible for Krummenacher's appointment.

Mattresses and Box Springs

Made to Your Order Insure Comfort

In order to assure our customers the Horne high standard of quality in such important items as mattresses and box springs, they are made in our own workshop. Here skilled artisans, using the best materials, turn out pieces that bring you the utmost in comfort and years of service.

Since so much in life depends upon proper rest and sleep, mattresses and springs can play an important part. Trained workmen, knowing your requirements, build up a box spring from the planing of boards to a satin smoothness to the final covering, after springs are tied and a cotton padding is added for extra comfort. The best quality of hair and wool sheeting makes luxurious mattresses, hard or soft as you prefer. They are made to your order.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

California Shares Social Honors With Florida More Than Ever This Winter

DON'T you think that California is sharing social honors with Florida just a little more than usual this winter? It seems so to me, at least. Quite a few local people have had winter homes there for quite a while, of course, but this year there has appeared to be even more tendency than of old toward the West.

A motor trip to California is being planned by several Sewickleyans. Early next week Mrs. William Wilson Cunningham, of Frederick avenue, with her son, Howard Cunningham, and her brother, Edward McMillen, are going to leave the Valley to drive to the Pacific Coast. They expect to be gone about six months. On Monday afternoon Mrs. Cunningham's daughter, Mrs. Harris Potter, gave a luncheon and bridge party for her.

Not quite so far West, but still in that direction, Chandler, Ariz., has attracted the Christian I. Shannons, of Boundary street, Sewickley. They are going to leave tomorrow for that place. And also leaving tomorrow for the West is Dr. W. W. Simpson, who is going to join Mrs. Simpson in California.

In the East is Miss Lucy Moore, of Sewickley, who is spending a few weeks in Atlantic City, and Miss Margaret Campbell has gone to the same shore resort to join her sister, Mrs. William Booth Miller. And Mrs. W. D. Henry left yesterday to spend a few days in New York.

Another bit of news from Sewickley is the fact that Mrs. E. D. Gilmore, of Thorn street, has her niece, Marion Keller, of Charlottesville, Va., as her guest for about 10 days.

A very pretty bridge party and tea was given yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Robert Ivory in her home in Beaver road, Glen Osborne, when she entertained about 45 guests. She gave the party for her daughter-in-law, the junior Mrs. Robert Ivory, of Beaver road, Sewickley, who was, you recall, Esther Lyle, of Squirrel Hill, before her marriage.

Two girls who are to be married in the near future were guests of honor at a bridge party which was given Thursday afternoon by three young matrons, Mrs. Gordon Lowell, of Crystal Lake, Ill., who is visiting her father and mother here; Mrs. Karl Bohren and Mrs. Harold Moore. The soon-to-be brides are Margaret Meals, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel W. Meals, of North Negley avenue, who is to marry William Frederick Ewart in June, and Janet McLean, who is engaged to Karl Straub. The party was given in Mrs. Moore's home.

Miss Grace Beckert of Coraopolis and her sister, Mrs. Joseph Harper of Dormont, entertained with a shower in the former's home Thursday night in honor of Miss Dorothy Elizabeth Roll of Coraopolis, whose engagement to H. Russell Weller was announced recently. Four tables of bridge were in play.

* * *

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Emily M. Hahn, daughter of Mrs. H. B. Hahn of Avalon, to Leo W. Shultz, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Shultz of Mansfield, O.

The semi-annual dance of the Mellon Bank Club will be a Washington's Birthday party to be held Tuesday night in Webster Hall. There will be cards as well as dancing.

* * *

At a bridge tea given this afternoon, announcement was made of the engagement of Miss Marguerite Rintoul, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Rintoul of Carnegie place, to Charles Harrell Youngstrom of San Francisco. Mr. Youngstrom is a University of California man.

* * *

Mrs. Harry W. Gleffer of the Negley apartments, announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Martha Converse Gleffer, to John Murdoch Clarke of Philadelphia, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Clarke of the North Side.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. William S. Hendrickson, of Butler street, Springdale, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mary Rilla Hendrickson, to Dr. W. Paul Walker, of Maryland avenue, East End.

The Ladies' Guild of St. Bede's Church will have a card party Monday night in the school hall, Edgerton street. Mrs. E. C. Haight and Mrs. Otto Fussenegger will be hostesses.

Alpha Chapter No. 93, O. E. S., is to give a dance and card party Thursday night in the O. E. S. Temple, Highland avenue. Mrs. Ella Miller is in charge, with Mrs. Cornelia Hellagan chairman of cards.

A benefit card party and dance will be held Monday night in the Elks' Auditorium, Seventh street, by the Triakonta Club for the benefit of St. Brigid's Church. Edward Kretz is in charge of euchre; Mrs. R. Regan, "500;" Mrs. J. Powell, bridge; Miss Ella Ryan, prizes, and P. Whitlow, bingo.

* * *

The Alumnae Association of the Pittsburgh Training School for Nurses, of the Homeopathic Hospital, will hold a benefit bridge party next Friday night in the nurses' dormitory in Aiken avenue. Miss Gertrude Brown is general chairman.

* * *

A dance will be held Monday night in G. B. U. Hall, Brookline boulevard, Brookline, for the benefit of the Vincentian Home for Incurables. Mrs. E. Larkin is chairman for the affair.

MUSIC CRITIC SPEAKS AT CRAFTON MEETING

It was an exceedingly interesting as well as entertaining talk which J. Fred Lissfelt, music critic of the Sun-Telegraph, gave the Crafton Woman's Club yesterday afternoon. And to give it added interest, Mrs. Lissfelt, who came to Pittsburgh last month as a bride, sang a few illustrative numbers, doing them with a great deal of sweetness, both as to voice and manner.

"Pennsylvania Musicians" was Mr. Lissfelt's subject, developing which he discussed Francis Hopkinson, Ethelbert Nevin, Foster Burleigh, Adolph Foerster, Harvey Gaul, T. Carl Whitmer and William Wentzell, most of whom Pittsburgh claims as her own. In line with his discussion of Burleigh's work, Mr. Lissfelt had some interesting things to say of Negro spirituals and he also spoke of jazz, saying, because it is the only original American contribution to music, and is so new, we are afraid of it, but that it is something no European can imitate and it has its place just as any other form.

Mr. Lissfelt paid a sincere tribute to Harvey Gaul, to whom he referred as "the finest musician in the city, a man with a tremendous musical background, who is writing important things and going on towards bigger things." William Wentzell's work always has the stamp of originality, the speaker stated.

The club members who met, as is their custom, in the Craft Club, elected their new nominating committee, including Mrs. W. S. Guy, Mrs. Sherman Massingham, Mrs. J. M. Carnes, Mrs. C. C. Moyar and Mrs. Carl E. Coslowsky, and it was reported that Mrs. E. N. Zern, one of the members, had sent to every one of the 112 boys and girls at Cresson Sanatorium an individually addressed valentine.

A capacity audience attended the dramatic sketch, "We Moderns," presented last night in the auditorium of the Carnegie Library, Carnegie, by the Women's Club of that town. The cast included Mrs. Thomas S. Lenfesty, Mrs. John Conrad, Mrs. H. R. Geib, Mrs. Fred Heathcote, Mrs. Chalmers Davies, Mrs. Charles Sincell, Mrs. T. I. Cotton, Mrs. Harry Garvey, Mrs. Floyd Wallace, Mrs. W. A. K. Clark, Mrs. George Stewart and Mrs. John Allenspaugh. The play was under the direction of Mrs. Delilah Porter King. The Woman's Club of Rosslyn Farms also presented a clever play. The proceeds are to be used for local civic improvements.

* * *

Mrs. Marie G. Corriolis will be honor guest and speaker at the Quota Club luncheon in the William Penn Hotel Monday. The subject selected by Mrs. Corriolis is "Impressions of Modern Thought of Women." Miss Mary Russell Purman is attending an inter-cities meeting of the Parkersburg (W. Va.) Quota Club today as honor guest.

The Massy White Harbison Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, recently organized and including women of the North Side, North Boroughs and the Sewickley Valley, will have a Washington's Birthday luncheon on Wednesday at the Congress of Clubs. An appropriate program has been planned and will include an address by Attorney Albert T. Morgan, descendant of two Revolutionary families of Western Pennsylvania, whose theme will be "Washington, the Man of the Hour." The Rev. Dr. Lee Anna Starr will offer the invocation and Mrs. Joseph E. Baldridge, first regent of the chapter, will preside. The musical program will be presented by Mrs. William L. Stone, contralto; Mrs. Bertha Gross King, pianist and accompanist; Miss Elizabeth Drake, whistler, and Miss Beatrice Lane, reader. A short address will also be made by Mrs. Harry C. Miller, founder and vice regent of the chapter, and Mrs. Carl E. Cosolowsky, Congress president, wills give greetings. The hostess committee includes Mrs. Marcus K. Miller, Mrs. Alfred C. Miller, Mrs. Harry C. Miller and Mrs. Walter Galbreath, with Mrs. Walter F. Cooley as chairman of arrangements.

To celebrate the ninth anniversary of the club, the board members of the Squirrel Hill Community Club will give a tea next Friday afternoon in Roosevelt school. A musical program, a birthday cake and a brief talk from each past president are on the program. On Friday night the club will co-operate with the Arcadian Bible Class of the Mary S. Brown Methodist Episcopal Church in giving a musicale, the program for which will be furnished by Rose Leader Chislett, contralto; Earl Mitchell, organist, and Will Rhodes, tenor.

The Women's Welsh Club of Pittsburgh will hold a Martha Washington tea party in costume at the Odd Fellows Hall, Fourth avenue, Wednesday, February 22, at 8 p. m. Under the direction of Mrs. J. Harry Jones, with Miss Jane Davies at accompanist, a musical program has been arranged. Special numbers will be given by Miss Hilda Davies, harpist, and Mrs. Bronwen Dunlevy, reader, both of Steubenville; Miss Thelma Kennedy, Miss Mary Williams, Miss Charlotte Gregnawalt, Miss Myra Harris and Wilfred Lowe.

"Is the Immigrant an Asset or a Liability?" will be debated before the Wilkinsburg Woman's Club at its meeting Monday, Mrs. Robert Dibble taking the "asset" side and Mrs. F. R. Elder the "liability." The American home committee members will serve as ushers, Mrs. H. N. Bassler will make the opening prayer and Mrs. J. C. Ackerman will be leader.

Monday afternoon the musical department of the Dormont New Century Club will meet at the home of Mrs. T. W. Lane, Grandin avenue, Mrs. W. C. Lang and Mrs. H. F. Banks being the joint hostesses. Following current events musical news by Mrs. B. B. Byers, Mrs. H. B. Randle will discuss dance forms in music. Choral rehearsal and a social period will conclude the afternoon.

The home economics department's next regular meeting, to be held on Tuesday afternoon, will take the form of a George Washington luncheon and card party at Gimbel's.

On Tuesday night the Junior Auxiliary will be entertained in Miss Carol Parker's home, Florida and Magnolia avenues. Current events will be reviewed by Mrs. A. R. Snee, Jr., and Mrs. R. L. Thompson, following which a play will be studied.

Following is the program which will be presented by Mrs. Taylor Allderdice, Henry Harris and Mr. and Mrs. J. Fred Lissfelt at the Woman's City Club tomorrow afternoon:

Overture, "Egmont" (Four Hands)........Beethoven
Mrs. Allderdice and Mr. Lissfelt.

Mrs. Lissfelt.
Two Hungarian Dances (Four Hands)..............Brahms
Mrs. Allderdice and Mr. Lissfelt.

Miss Gazella Pallos will be accompanist for Mrs. Allderdice, Mr. Lissfelt will accompany Mrs. Lissfelt, and Mrs. Ambrose N. Diehl, as hostess, will introduce the artists. Mrs. Ralph W. Harbison and Mrs. E. N. Calhoun will preside at the tea table.

A testimonial banquet to Mrs. Alberta McCoy, elected to the presidency for the third time, will be given on March 8 by the Eighteenth Ward Council of Republican Women, the affair also marking the council's second anniversary. The council is planning a series of four card parties, the first to take place Friday night in Veterans' Hall, Arlington avenue, in charge of Mrs. Tillie Johnson, chairman, and her aides.

Luncheon will be served Wednesday by the Mothers' Club of Carrick for the team workers in the war memorial campaign, which will close that day. The committee will meet Monday at the clubhouse for reports.

A turkey dinner will be served Wednesday night by the Women's Guild of the Oakland Methodist Episcopal Church.

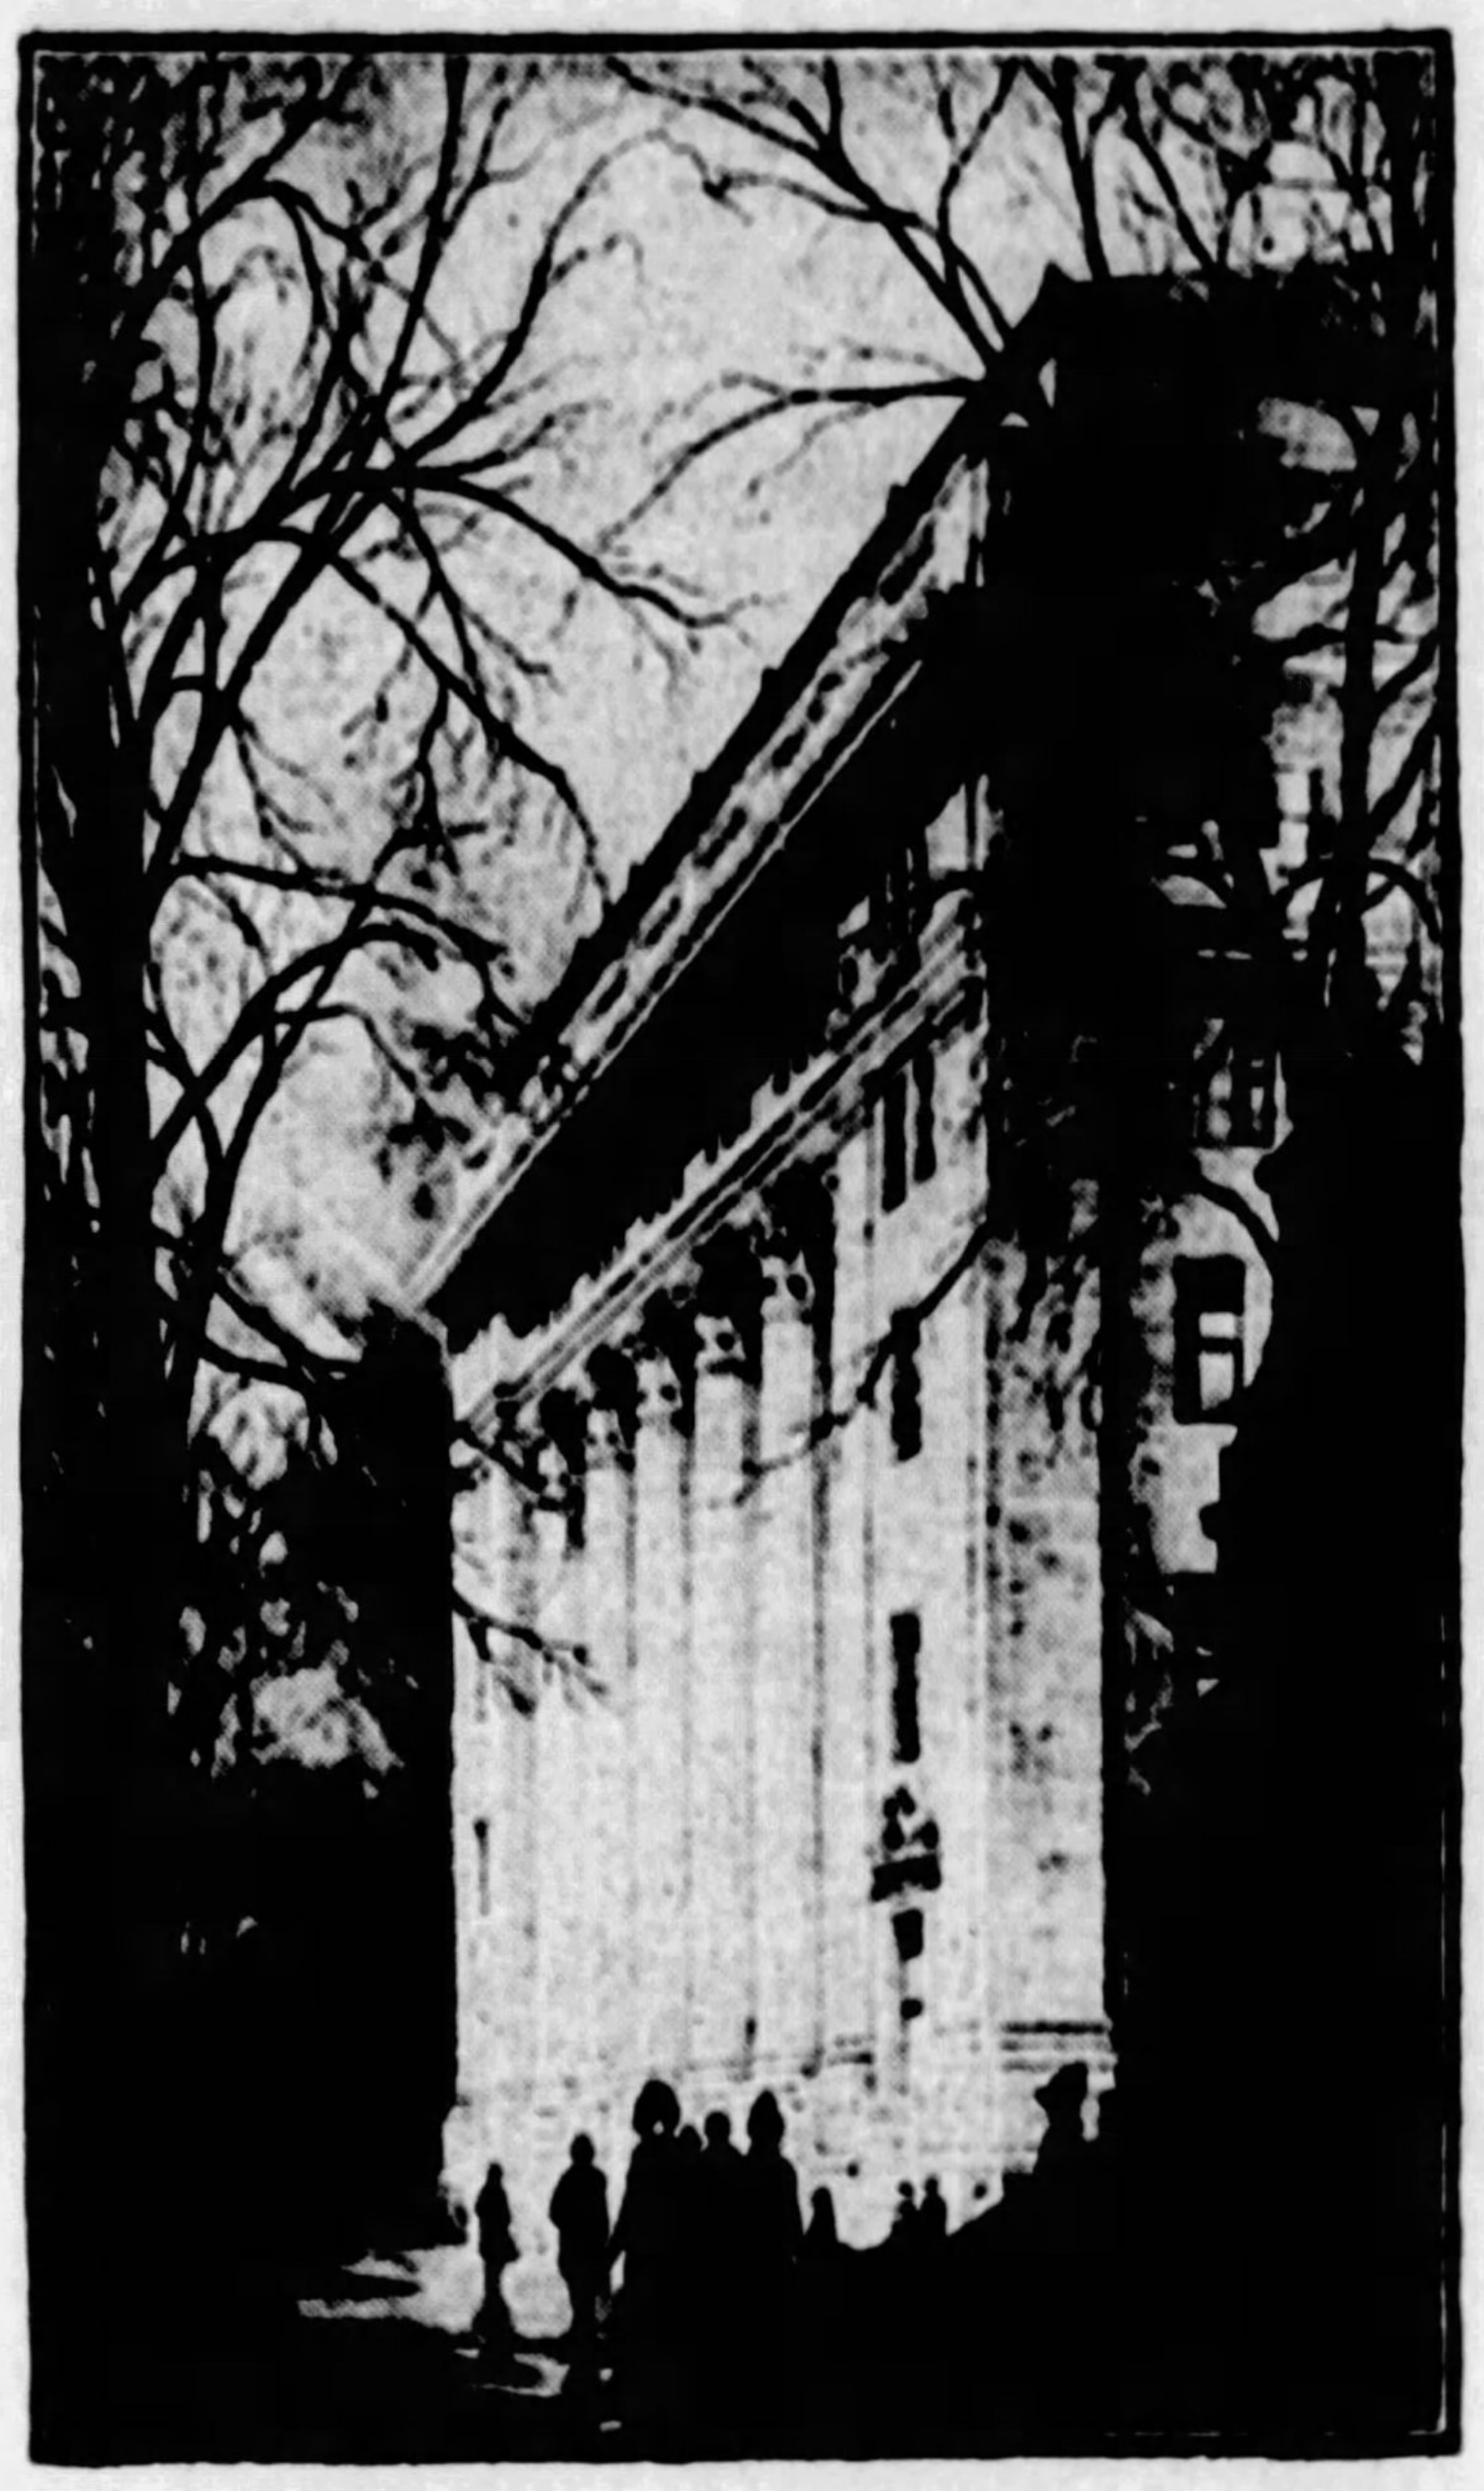
To secure the absolute protection of its policyholders in the United States the company actually maintains on deposit with United States Trustees approved securities in excess of its net liability to American policyholders.

Policies written and payable in United States currency.

Dividends to Policyholders increased for eighth sucessive year.



TOTAL INVESTMENTS IN UNITED STATES SECURITIES EXCEED $168,000,000

EXTRACTS FROM DIRECTORS' REPORT

Substantial advances have been made in all departments during the year. . .

The total net income for the year exceeded one hundred million dollars . . .

The strength and resources of the Company have been further enhanced . . .

The high earning power of the Company's investments has been again demonstrated. The net rate of interest earned on the mean invested assets, after fully providing for investment expenses, was 6.47 per cent. This gratifying result has been made possible by dividend increases, bonuses and stock privileges accruing on many of the Company's holdings.

The wisdom of the investment policy which has been consistently followed in past years, in favouring long term bonds and the stocks of outstanding and very carefully selected corporations, has been once more emphasized. The appraisal of our securities shows that the excess of market values over cost increased during the year by $19,235,889.99. In addition, a net profit of $5,028,033.20 accrued from the redemption or sale of securities which had risen to high premiums.

The quality of the investments listed in the assets is testified by the fact that on both bonds and preferred stocks not one dollar, due either as interest or dividend, is in arrear for even one day, while the dividends accruing to common stocks are greatly in excess of the dividends payable on the same stocks at the time of purchase.

The surplus earned during the year amounted to $38,511,029.67, from which the following appropriations have been made:

$5,000,000 has been deducted from the market value of our securities as a further provision against possible future fluctuations, increasing the amount so set aside to $10,000,000.

$1,500,000 has been added to the account to provide for unforeseen contingencies, which now stands at $12,500,000.

$1,000,000 has been written off the Company's Head Office building and other properties.

$500,000 has been set aside to provide for the greater longevity of annuitants, bringing the total provision under this heading to $2,000,000.

$50,000 has been set aside to provide for claims in respect of total disability as yet unreported.

$11,090,056.61 has been paid or allotted as profits to policyholders during the year. In addition, $6,205,573.00 has been contingently allotted to deferred dividend policies issued prior to 1911, and to five year distribution policies, to provide for profits accrued but not yet payable.

After making these deductions and allocations, $11,269,330.89 has been added to the undivided surplus, bringing the total over all liabilities, contingency account and capital stock to $45,280,896.14.

Your Directors are gratified to announce, for the eighth successive year, a substantial increase in the scale of profits to be distributed to participating policyholders during the ensuing year.

WASHINGTON TO BE SERMON THEME

Services in several churches Sunday will be dedicated to the memory of George Washington, whose birthday anniversary will be celebrated next week.

Washington's Birthday will be recognized at the Emory Methodist Episcopal Church tomorrow. Dr. W. Wofford T. Duncan, pastor, will preach in the morning on "The Nation's Need of Religion." Clyde Kelly's Branch No. 84, Letter Carriers' Association of East Liberty and vicinity, will attend the service at 7:45 p. m. in a body, and the Letter Carriers' Band will play. Postmaster George W. Gosser has been invited to attend. Dr. Duncan will speak on "Lindbergh, the Letter Carrier."

The Rev. Dr. George H. Broening, pastor of the Greenfield Presbyterian Church, also will preach a special sermon on Washington, speaking Sunday evening at 7:45 o'clock. Dr. Broening's subject will be "The Christian Character of George Washington." In the morning at 11 o'clock he will speak on the "Redemption."

MISSIONS TOPIC

Dr. John A. Marquis, secretary of the Board of National Missions, will speak in the Shadyside Presbyterian Church at 11 o'clock on "A Century and a Quarter of Conquest," covering the 125 years of service of the Board of National Missions of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A. The Rev. Dr. Murdoch McLeod, associate pastor, will speak at the afternoon service on "A Question of Authority." Helen Bell Rush, Rose Leader Chislett and the Vesper Chorus will sing at this service. The chorus is under the direction of Earl Mitchell, organist.

SHELTON'S SERMON

"Job's Wife—Advice Versus Sympathy"—will be the subject of the Rev. Dr. George W. Shelton of the Second Presbyterian Church, Eighth street, at the evening service. Dr. Shelton will answer such questions as "Does It Really Pay to Be Good?" "Why Do the Righteous Suffer?" and "If God Is Good, Why So Much Sorrow in the World?" At the morning service Dr. Shelton's subject will be "A Great and Good Man Tested." The choir will sing at both services, among the numbers being, "Jesus Is Mine," Blount; "O Paradise, O Paradise," Ambrose, and "Turn Ye Even Unto Me," Harker. Ruth Bowers Gibson, violinist, will play "Andante Cantabile," Tschaikowsky. S. K. Cunningham and F. J. Woollett will address the men of the church at 10 a. m.

VOLUNTEER SERVICES

Mrs. Charles E. Sykes of Erie, wife of Maj. Sykes, in charge of the work of the Volunteers of America there, will be the principal speaker Sunday night at the Downtown Mission of the Volunteers of America. Mrs. Sykes will be the guest of Adjt. and Mrs. Richard H. Ives. Mrs. Sykes also will speak at the Sunday school rally at the Downtown Mission in the afternoon. Capt. H. Clyde Parker will speak in the evening at the East End Mission, at which the Volunteers' Juvenile Chorus will sing. In the afternoon Mrs. Parker will speak at the Sunday school rally at the East End Mission.

ENDS SERMON SERIES

The Rev. Dr. Robert W. Woods, pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, will preach the last of a series of sermons on the "Life of Fellowship," at services in the church Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Dr. J. Kirkwood Craig, head of the Allegheny County Sunday School Association, will speak at 7:30 o'clock.

MUSICAL SERVICES

The fifth of the special musical services of the Edgewood Presbyterian Church will be given at 4:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon instead of February 26, as previously announced. The service will be one of old familiar hymns for both choir and congregation. The Rev. Ralph Waldo Lloyd, pastor, will relate incidents in connection with the writing of many of the hymns.

"God and America" will be the theme of the Rev. B. M. Paul's sermon at 11 o'clock in the Lawrenceville Presbyterian Church, Thirty-ninth street. In the evening he will speak on "Whence Bread Enough to Satisfy?" the third sermon in a series of Bible questions.

"New Frontiers for Faith" will be the subject of the morning sermon of the Rev. W. S. Trosh of Calvary Methodist Episcopal Church, North Side. At the 4:30 vesper service Dr. Trosh will address a Boy Scout troop.

Jury Finds Auto More Valuable Than Hand

By Universal Service.

BUTLER, Pa., Feb. 18.—In estimating the value of an automobile as compared to to the loss of a woman's hand here yesterday, a Butler county jury awarded the automobile owner, Louis Rott, $600, while an award of $100 was made to Mrs. Rott for the loss of her hand. The automobile was damaged in an accident. The jury was out six hours.

METHODISTS TO MEET TUESDAY

The Pittsburgh District Conference will be held Tuesday in the Mt. Lebanon Methodist Episcopal Church. Bishop Francis J. McConnell, presiding, will call the conference to order at 9:30 o'clock and will speak at the devotional service. Local delegates to the General Conference of the Church, to convene in Kansas City next May, have been invited to speak of the proposed denominational legislation. Questions pertaining to increasing the enrollment of the Sunday Schools; growth in church membership and more liberal giving to benevolences will be discussed.

Each of the 46 congregations in the Pittsburgh district will send two or more lay delegates to the conference. A fellowship luncheon will be served in the Mt. Lebanon church at 12:15 o'clock and the conference will adjourn at 4 p. m.

HOLY NAME TO HOLD RALLY

The Holy Name Society from the 15 parishes comprising the East End district, will be represented at the Sheridan Square Theater, Sunday evening, at 8 o'clock, in one of the largest meetings ever staged in this district. It is to be the first of three rallies which will bring together every representative Holy Name man in the city. For a year and a half these rallies have been held monthly in all the districts and by June the entire membership will have been visited.

The speakers will be Bishop Hugh C. Boyle, Rev. James M. Delaney, Diocesan Spiritual Director; the Rev. D. J. Malady, pastor of Holy Rosary Church; the Rev. J. P. Gallagher, pastor of St. Raphael's Church and dean of the district; Leo G. Griffith and F. W. Ries, Jr. both past state deputies of the Knights of Columbus.

The committee in charge of the affair includes: Al J. Higgins, district chairman; Joseph A. Glock, secretary; E. P. Hayes, treasurer; F. R. Reifsnyder, E. J. Cyphers and James McShane.

CAPT. TRIGG WILL OPEN SALVATION ARMY SERIES

Capt. William Trigg, of New York City, territorial young people's organizer of The Salvation Army, will open a series of meetings here Sunday, when he will speak at 11 a. m. and at 8 p. m. in the auditorium, 425 Second avenue. Assisting Capt. Trigg will be Capt. Thomas Malpass, divisional young people's secretary for Western Pennsylvania. Both services, as well as the Sunday School exercises in the afternoon will include choral exercises by the Young People's choir.

—substantial, convincing reasons for attending this 20% off furniture sale

MONDAY STARTS FINAL FULL WEEK—TIME TO ACT

It's furniture sale time—and Boggs & Buhl are very much in the thick of it—sales this week ahead of last year's remarkable record—reasons not hard to find. There's a wideness—a distinctiveness, a personality in this selection—that mere quantity alone cannot give.

That applies not only to the finest of pieces and suites—but in like part to the great showing of popular priced furniture—by all odds the most representative showing ever assembled in the store.

That B & B furniture is always moderately priced is a generally recognized fact — and this radical February discount makes the value today rather indisputable (actually and relatively).

20% off entire stock from prices already moderate—that's what we term a "presentation of facts"—logic, not argument—arithmetic, not contention.

Great Lots of Odd Pieces and Suites of Every Nature in the February Sale—20%, or even more, off in every instance—note these convincing examples.

Right Two Get Along On Little

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"TWO can live as cheaply as one!"

This optimistic aphorism has encouraged many a young couple, possessing more courage than cash, to undertake the adventure of matrimony.

But can two live anywhere near as cheaply as one?

This question is supremely important. On its answer depends the happiness of thousands who are in love and would marry today save for the haunting spectre of poverty.

Thousands of modern young couples are accepting one of two alternatives — either they defer marriage, waiting for established financial standing and a comfortable bankroll, or else they marry with the understanding that the wife shall continue to be a wage earner.

IT would be hard to say which of these alternatives is more satisfactory to the average couple. In the one case marriage is postponed until the late thirties or even later. By that time it too often happens that the fresh enthusiasm for each other, for marriage, home and family has vanished with the best years of youth.

Accepting the second alternative, which is perhaps the better compromise, a woman almost inevitably neglects her home and husband or else her business. She wears herself out with double responsibility. Still more serious, children are regarded as an extravagant inconvenience.

Surely for the average woman home and children are the great career. And while her children are young home and children demand nearly all a wife's time and loving attention. The old ideal of marriage still stands, in which home is the center of woman's [illegible] and love, while the average [illegible] is happiest supporting his [illegible] his children and his home. [illegible] this kind of marriage be successfully undertaken today on a very small income? The answer is qualified: "That depends!"

THE other day a telegram went winging its way over the wires from a young man in a big city to a girl "upstate." The girl kissed the yellow slip of paper and hugged it close to her heart.

"We can marry immediately, dear," it read. "I have a regular job, 40 weekly."

Elsie will have to cook and clean, iron and mend, perhaps wash and iron, in a small flat in an unfashionable neighborhood when this radiant dream of the telegram comes true. Yet she is sure she is the luckiest girl in the world. For she loves Frank. They have planned together many times how they will save for a tiny bungalow with a garden and garage, paying for it gradually, where children can grow up in the sunshine. Yes, I am inclined to agree with Elsie that she and her Frank are among the lucky ones of this earth!

WHETHER two can live as cheaply as one, depends on the One. If, for instance, she has a sense of values—if she knows or is willing to learn, how to keep house thriftily, appreciating the real beauty of economy as compared with wastefulness—if she realizes that even hard, monotonous housework can be made interesting when there is enthusiasm and good management—if she is willing to live independently and happily within her husband's means, without keeping his nose to the grindstone by extravagance —then she can make it possible for two to live on a remarkably small income without sacrificing things worth while.

But if the One feels it imperative to outdo her neighbors, to keep up with the latest extravagant fads, to wear a fur coat though there may be no blankets on the bed—then she had best not marry a poor man.

ON THE other hand, if the Other One—the man you love—is a poor manager, always in debt, with expensive personal habits and a philosophy of show-off and sham, that will not do for marriage on a very small income.

The important question is, what kind of two do you and he make? Two who know how to adjust themselves to circumstances and each other, who have wealth, ambition, courage, common sense and mutual love, can live triumphantly and joyfully on a steady income about large enough to support one in comfort. This can be done, and is being done by young couples who do not intend to be cheated out of their heritage of home and children by false values of an extravagant era!

Homes where rigid economy is being wisely practiced are in many instances the happiest of all. Our real wants are few and simple. But love is a need of every man, woman and child.

SUNLIGHT, fresh air are free. Beauty is free to those who have eyes to see and hearts to love. Children brought up in a home rich in self-sacrificing, happy affection have the best heritage, even though their material possessions may be few.

Two cannot literally live quite as cheaply as one. But the peace and content and self-fulfillment of happy marriage are well worth the difference and any economies and sacrifices involved.

So, if you and your man are young, healthy, sensible, suited to each other and in love, I trust you will not let poverty cheat you out of happiness. Prove in your married life that two can live almost as cheaply as one when the two are the Right Two.

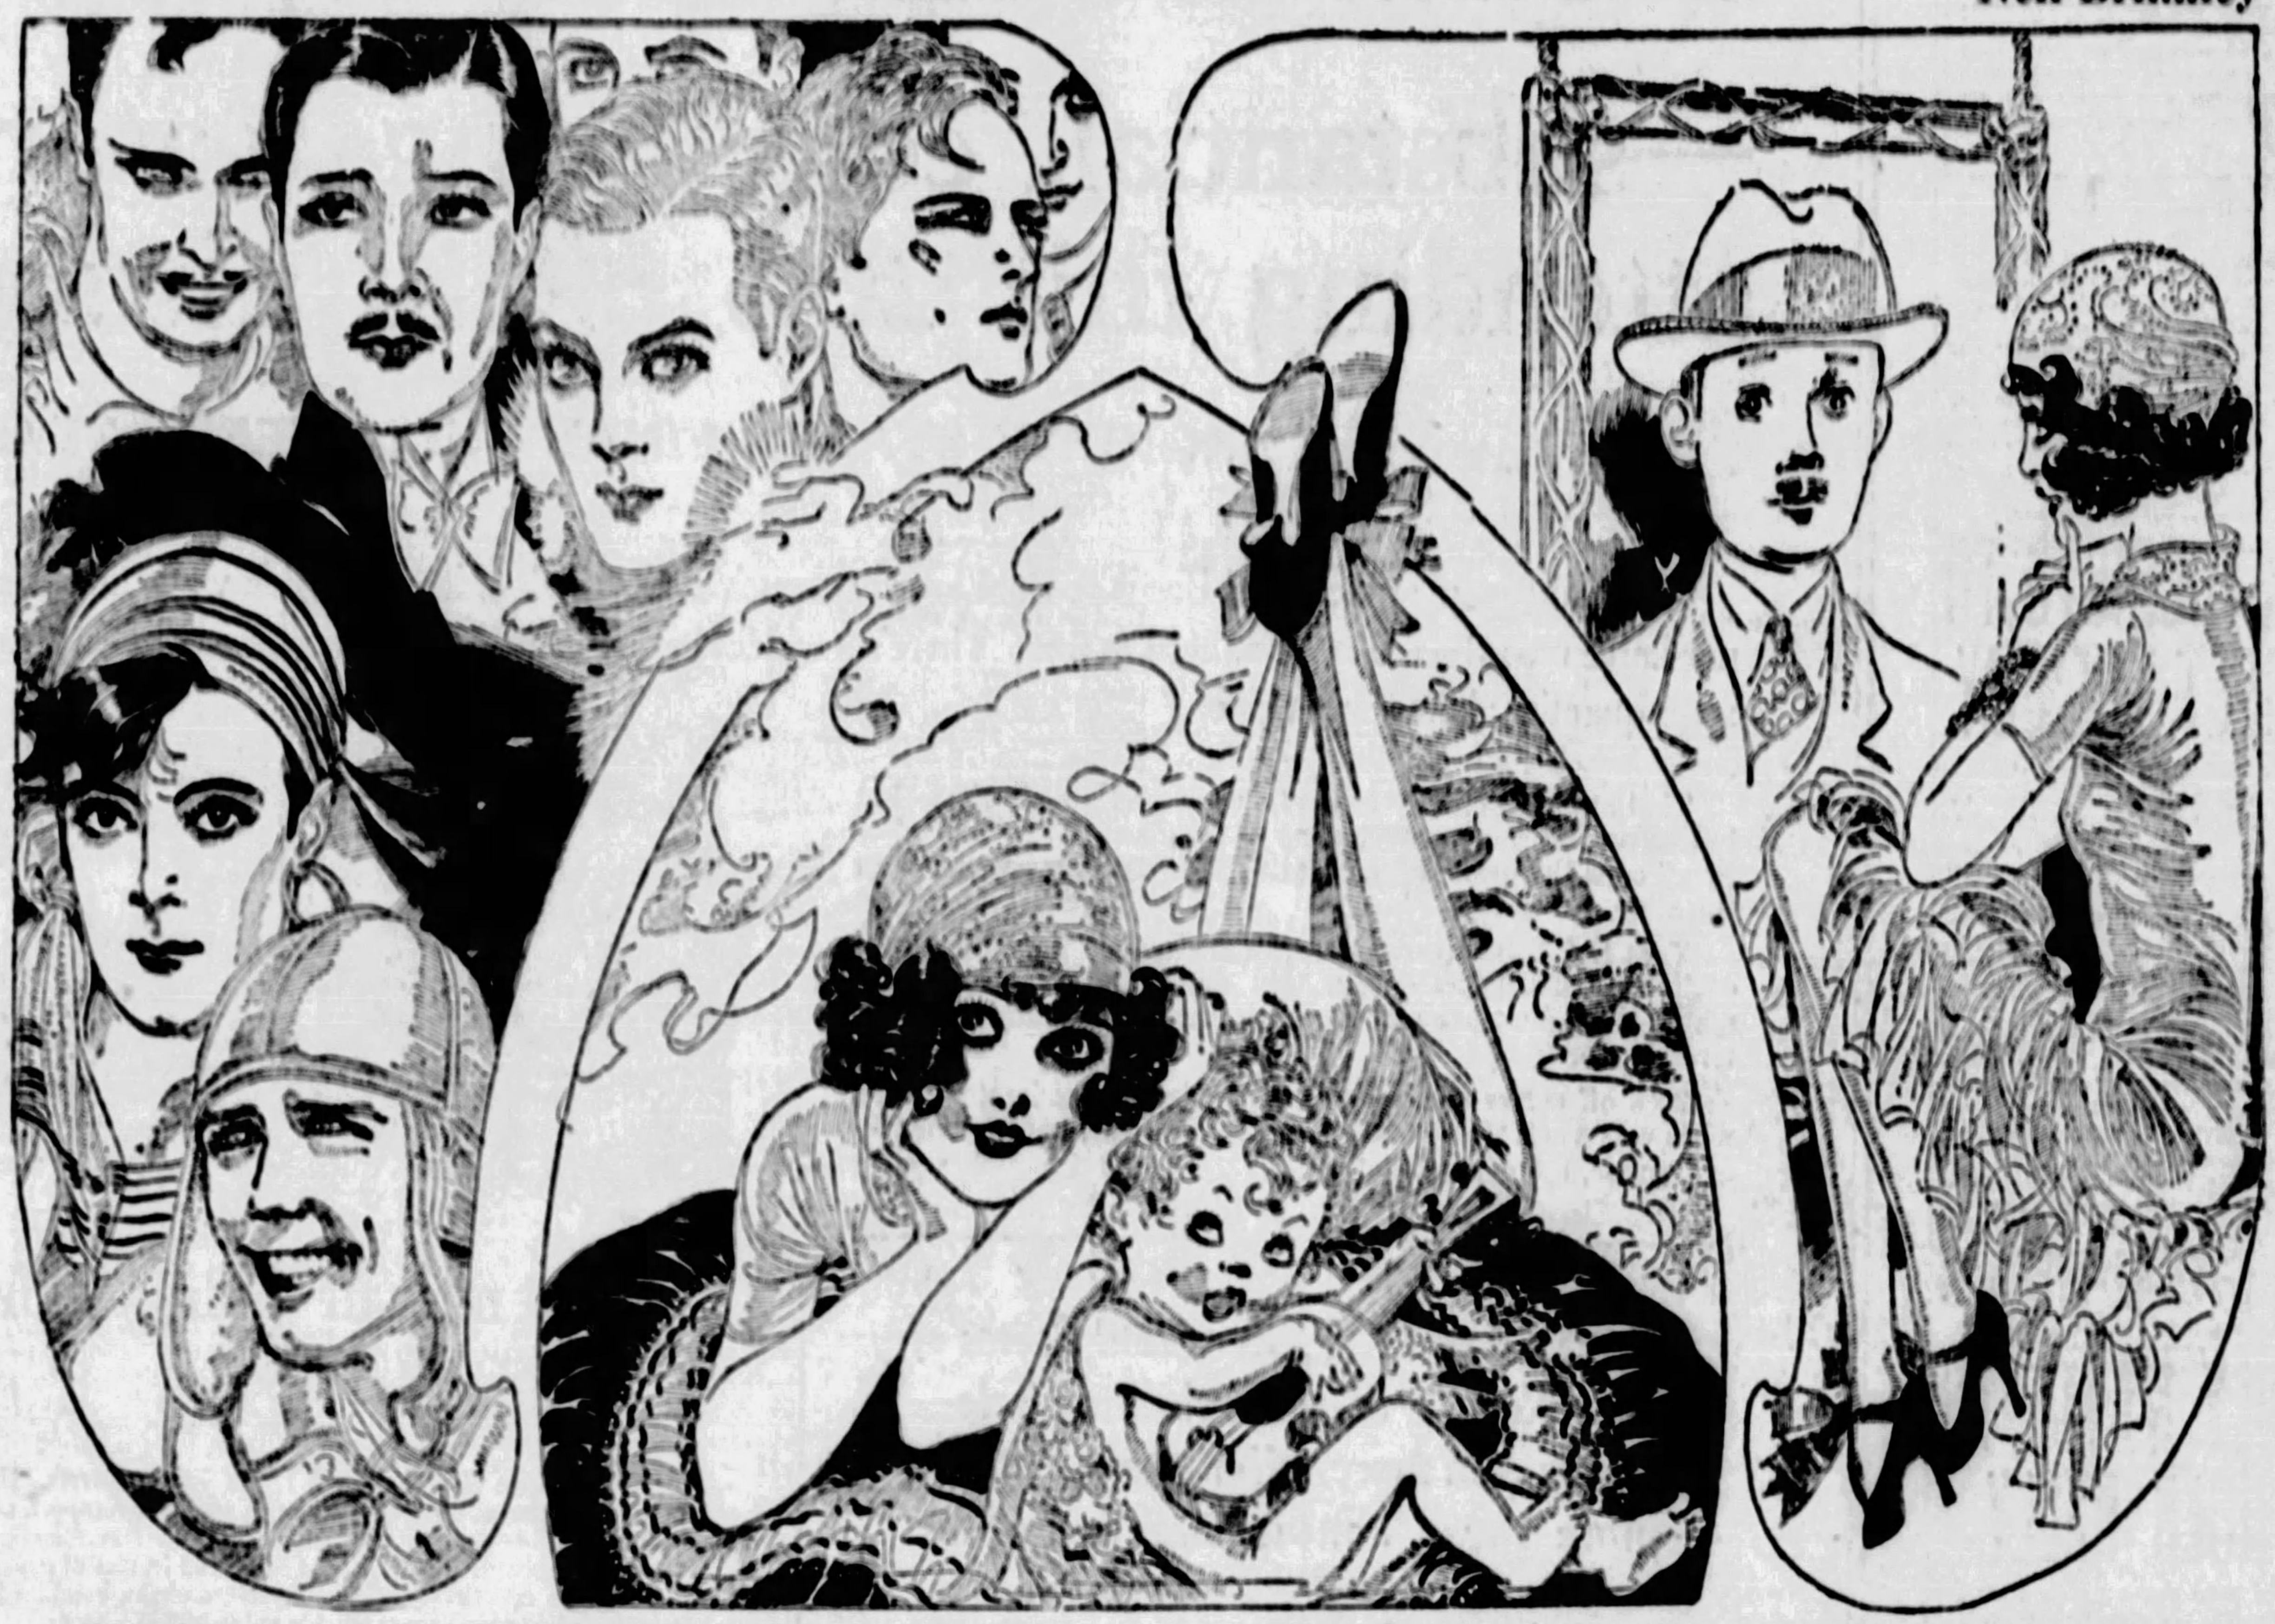
AND ALONG CAME PRINCE CHARMING -:- -:-

Drawn by
Nell Brinkley



Her dream of the coming lover was a thousand Prince Charmings rolled into one.

And when he DID come along—he was STILL a thousand Prince Charmings rolled into one.

A PRETTY young lady lay upon a fine cushion—or another version of the same story says it was a scratchy cotton "sofa-pillow"—and while the invisible and immortal Love twanged his incendiary chant beside her, dreamed a dream of the coming HE. The approaching One Lover. The unknown, unformable face of the man who would be the right one forever and ever. Her modern Prince Charming.

And before her charmed eyes danced a brilliant but never-still galaxy of masculine faces—heroic, gay, beautiful, adventurous, haughty, melancholy, LOOKING romance, brave, tender, ineffably colored by the unearthly hues of True Love, High Hearts and Radiant Romance. Each one beautiful in its particular way. Each one the face of the young-man-in-a-spotty-tie-to-be. Each one, his face—and ALL, his face. He was an unsettled vision made up of a thousand summoning, romance-rainbowed, princely faces. He was to be all these rolled into one!

And lo! Look on the miracle that the fat child with the tambouritza wrought. The miracle that he works every day of the world's Life! When the young man in the spotty tie did come along, the modern Prince Charming, he was, lucky for him, these same thousand heroic and romantic dreams rolled into one!

So the young lady with the pretty face and the bright faith in Love thought. But YOU did not think that when you went to the pretty young lady's wedding and saw the bridegroom, did you? You wondered "what she saw in HIM!" And Eros whispered in your ear, "She saw Prince Charming! Every reincarnation of him gathered into one."

Men are lucky that pretty women see, and believe in, the prince behind the plain face! And they do—indeed.

—NELL BRINKLEY.

With Love And Faith, Perfection

By LUCY LOWELL.

JUST have met the Perfect American Family.

Oh, I don't blame you for doubting! For saying there isn't any such thing! Not in this day of the hue and cry about the disappearance of the home and the flapper mother and son and daughter living their own lives and a sort of armed neutrality between parents and children.

But this family is a fact; I know, because I spent a delightful afternoon with them. There were other guests, and I don't mind admitting that I thought them too good to be true at first; I thought they were parading their company manners.

THEN I saw my mistake. It began to dawn on me when the girl—and what a girl!—was invited to spend some weeks at the home of one of the women present.

The brother spoke up quickly: "You'll have to ask her brothers about that. You see, we couldn't get along without Anna Louise several weeks."

The girl, whose face was like a flower with sunshine on it, flashed him a smile and he smiled back. Real affection there; none of the grinding antagonism that exists so often between the boys and girls of one family.

And the pride those youngsters took in their father and his work! And the sweet, gentle interest in their beautiful mother!

I STUDIED them all afternoon, trying to figure out the secret of that exquisite family spirit. It not only was that they loved each other, but there was something beyond; something that held them in a double unity.

Then I decided it to be this: Each of them loved every other one—and each was perfectly sure of the other's love! Not only affection, you see, but complete faith.

And it occurred to me that no love can be fine and high without faith. Nothing can be perfect without all the elements of perfection.

And this Perfect Family, it seemed to me, had the final and most important element—next to love—that goes to make up ideal family life—faith in itself and each of its members.

Sayings of Mrs. Solomon

By HELEN ROWLAND

WHY THEY ARE "MISUNDERSTOOD"

MY DAUGHTER, when lovers say, "How congenial are we! Yea, how perfectly do we understand one another!" then are my sleeves filled with laughter.

• • •

For, alas, how shall a husband and wife find UNDERSTANDING, so long as they dwell in different worlds?

* * *

Behold, a woman liveth always in her yesterdays; but a man liveth only for his tomorrows!

HELEN ROWLAND

A woman sigheth for the sunsets that have gone and the moons that have waned. But a man looketh toward the rising sun of the future; and to him, every day is ANOTHER day, and every hour a new adventure!

A woman perceiveth her husband always as the ardent lover, the gay playmate and the enthusiastic pal of her courting days.

But a man perceiveth his wife only as the head of his house, the mother of his children, the guardian of his digestion, the alarm clock which awakeneth him mornings, and the curfew which curtaileth his evenings.

She saith, "Alas, dost thou no longer love me?"

And he answereth, "Sure! For why else did I marry thee?"

* * *

She sigheth, "Lo, ONCE thou didst observe the wave in mine hair and the blueness of mine eyes and the rose in my cheek!"

* * *

And he replieth, "Even so. But wherein have they changed."

She saith, "ONCE didst thou hasten from thy work that thou mighest make merry with me."

And he answereth, "Yea, verily. For then was I a Free Man; but now I am a Provider, and must slave at my desk that I may pay thy bills and meet they charge accounts!"

* * *

Go to. A woman yearneth always for the return of her lost lover; but a man yearneth only for a comforter and a companion, who will supply his needs, cater to his moods and hearken to his troubles.

• • •

And in all the days of her life there are but two times when a woman receiveth ENOUGH compliments and ALL of her husband's attention—when she standeth before the altar at her wedding, and when she lieth before it, at her funeral!

Boil Baby's Cereal Long and Give Variety

DR. COPELAND

THERE came into my hands recently a new cook book. It wasn't the "Congressional Ladies' Cook Book," or the pronouncements of some famous French chef. It is a book telling us how to cook for children.

Nothing can be more important than the preparation and cooking of children's food. Unless we lay a foundation of health and vigor in earliest youth, we are not building as we should. The bones and muscles of early life are indeed the foundation of the bones and muscles of adult life.

Our youngsters cannot have strong bones, normal teeth, elastic muscles, clear skin and pure blood, unless the food they take is the right kind of food. Not only must it be the right sort of food, but it must be prepared properly.

After weaning begins, the first food we give the baby is a cereal. On this account this should be the first food to be studied. I was glad to find the cereals leading off in the book I have mentioned.

Thorough cooking is emphasized, and properly so. A tiny baby's mouth and gullet and stomach are not ready for uncooked and hard substances. It is pointed out that the invitation on the label to cook the cereal 5 or 10 minutes, must be disregarded by the careful mother. Short-time cooking is not enough when a baby's food is being prepared.

This author believes that all cereals intended to be fed to young children should be cooked in a double boiler for three or four hours. Boiling—hard boiling—is not essential. But the cereal must be thoroughly steamed for a long time to make sure it is fit for the baby's use.

One of my friends, a woman I regard as a model mother in many ways, makes it a practice to have a different cereal for every day of the week. This makes it easier to excite the interest of the child.

There is no doubt that monotony in feeding is a harmful factor. Variety is the spice of life, it is said. Certainly, when it comes to eating, the importance of variety is not to be overlooked. This is particularly the case with young children.

You have such a choice in cereals that there is no difficulty at all in avoiding monotony. This is a thought worth remembering.

Very young children, being fed before the teeth have become useful, must be carefully fed with the cereals. It may be better to strain the product, to make sure no hard lumps and, particularly, no foreign particles go into the untrained throat.

You must not forget that the food for the baby must be especially prepared. There must be separate dishes and utensils. Care in these matters will have much to do with the growth and well being of the child.

Cooking for the young child is a real task and must be done by a patient and considerate parent.

For the Lovelorn -:-

By ELEANOR GALE

Just a Worried Jo

DEAR MISS GALE:

Having read your advice to others for quite a while and thinking it is wonderful, I have come also for it, hoping you can help me in what seems to be the matter. Will thank you in advance. I am a girl in my late teens and have been going with a fellow ever since I was 15 years of age. He is four years older than I am. I suppose you will say we don't love each other, but we do or we wouldn't be keeping such steady company for the length of time I have mentioned. We are as yet not engaged for neither of us believes in long engagements and don't intend to be married for at least another year for we feel we are still young and life is so long. The trouble lies here, Miss Gale. He is allowed to come to the house as many times a week as he wants to, but my parents would never let us go out to a movie or such. They are a little old-fashioned I believe, so we were content to see each other at home always at home with the other members of my family, but never alone. A couple of months ago we finally got mother's and dad's consent to go to a show, provided my sister was along. So we went and also took her. Then I don't think I can explain how we found ourselves in a show alone and we went alone to be exact about four times alone. Then people who saw us and knew who we were (rather relations of mine) didn't like the idea of me going to a show alone with him and began talking to mother about letting me go out saying she shouldn't allow it and now we are not allowed to go out anymore. Why is it we should suffer this way? We never go out of the way in what we do or say and always get home at about 10:30 or 11 o'clock, which I don't think are late hours. Some girls I suppose would not be satisfied with just a movie a week, but I am and would be if allowed to. If I go out and work how come I can't have a good time once in awhile. All work and no pleasure is not very good, is it? This fellow I mentioned likes me a lot I know for he told me he did and I believe him or he wouldn't put up with what he has, for me. His parents I have met and are real nice to me and my parents in return have nothing against him and like him a lot. What would you advise me to do for I care for him too much and am willing to stay at home when he comes down but it gets to be so tiresome sometimes having nothing to do. I have never had an affair of any kind till I met him and am not sorry. I do not believe in girls who pet drink smoke or indulge in any of such things.

JUST A WORRIED JO.

I cannot imagine why your parents would object to your going out occasionally my dear. Of course you want a good time. All young people do and staying at home all the time isn't much fun. Try to talk it over with them seriously and make them see that they are depriving you of something you should have.

Happy

DEAR MISS GALE:

I have been reading your column for a long while and I enjoy it very much. It seems the girls nowadays think there aren't any nice boys in the world. Well I'd like to tell them that I have found one and have had him now for four years. I have been going steady with him for four years and this last year we have been engaged. He has never played me a dirty trick since we started to go together, but I myself have played him a good many, but yet he has never turned me down. He is at our house every night in the week and yet we never get tired of one another. We seem to grow fonder of each other all the time. We often talk about marriage but think we have lots of time yet. I am 19 and he is 22. He says he would like to stay single this summer because he is a good baseball player and his team has won a couple of championship medals. Miss Gale, I would like to have your opinion on this because I think there still are some decent fellows in this world.

HAPPY.

I quite agree with you, my dear, and I am glad you have found the right one. But you are right in putting off your marriage, since you are so young.

Two Worried Girls

DEAR MISS GALE:

We are two of your constant readers of the lovelorn. We think you give wonderful advice to all questions which are sent to you to be solved. We have a very important question which we want solved. We have both been going with the same man and he seems to care a lot for both of us and we would like any advice you would give us for finding out which one he really cares the most for. We thank you very much for any advice.

TWO WORRIED GIRLS.

If you both start going out with other men, I think this one will make up his mind which one of you he really cannot lose.

Brown Eyes

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am 18 years old, have finished a four-year high school course, and have been working about six months. I always have had a number of friends, both boys and girls, but since I have been out of school I have added quite a number to my list of boy friends. Mother and dad complain about my going with different young men. Do you think there is any harm in having occasional dates, going to a show, dance or party with four or five of my acquaintances. I have had all of these boys up to the house at one time or another, and have introduced them to either my mother or dad. What do you suggest in such a case? I do not care enough for any particular one of them to keep steady company, but consider them all excellent friends. Do you think I should stop going out with several of them to go steadily with one? I really believe I am too young to keep steady company and can see no harm in going out with these young men and continuing to meet others.

BROWN EYES.

I am inclined to agree with you, my dear. You are too young to settle down to one man.

Why We Behave Like Human Beings

by George A. Dorsey, Ph.D., LL.D.

Why We Smile and Why We Can Have a 'Poker Face'

One-Fourth of Our Muscles Are in the Face and We Manage to Control Them

Although they are not common, some people have tails, we learned in yesterday's chapter of "Why We Behave Like Human Beings," in The Sun-Telegraph. Also that boneheads really exist, their solid skulls resulting from too early closing of sutures. Other facts about our bony structure and how the human foot is changing, were told.

More Proofs of Animal Ancestry

By GEORGE A. DORSEY, PH.D., LL.D.

CHAPTER 7.

MOST of us have about 310 muscles on each side of our body. They are subject to such variation that Testut, a noted French anatomist, required 900 pages to describe them. Some of us may have three muscles an ape would be ashamed to own, hangovers from such a remote past.

GEORGE A. DORSEY

We marvel at the agility of monkeys and are astonished at the human qualities of their actions. Do we not often expect them to smile? The smile never comes; they have no muscle to smile with. Even the chimpanzee cannot express with its face the emotions we think it should; its facial muscles are less sharply defined than ours. In monkeys they are even less differentiated.

One-fourth of all our muscles are in our neck and face! The human face can light up or cloud over because its muscles are attuned for complex action—keyed to the human pitch.

Facial muscles in mammals below man are more simple. We look for intelligence in the eyes of a horse, not in the expression of its face. When it needs to flick a fly from its face or shoulder, it moves a muscle buried in the skin. Such a muscle covers many animals like a blanket.

Facial Joys and Glooms

We all have bits of this skin muscle—some of us more, some less, even on the chest and back. Usually we cannot twitch it; we send a hand after the fly. We have traces of it in our scalp; a few have enough to move the whole scalp. Most of us can wrinkle our forehead—and do, when perplexed. Apes use this muscle both in pleasure and to frighten enemies. We all have vestiges of the muscles dogs use to pull, push and lift their ears; some can even wiggle them.

So, while the skin muscle of our face and shoulders tends to disappear, the deeper facial muscles show progressive variation. They are among our most recent acquisitions. We retain the muscle by which the dog shows its canine tooth; we can all snarl. But the muscle by which we smile is not so regularly present; the man of gloom may have no risorius.

Variations in muscles about the nose and mouth, necessary for speech, are usually forward-looking; they give the "speaking likeness" to man. Often they reveal what the mind is trying to hide. Only as we grow in experience can we make our face a mask to belie our emotions. This is because the face is primarily under the control of the autonomic nerves; they act of their own sweet will and are by nature honest. But by and by our brain learns to get control of them; we force our face to wear a smile when our heart would bid our eyes to weep.

Our arms are free; they have not forgotten that they were once legs. Of 36 bodies examined, 292 variations were found in the arm muscles; 119 in the leg. Our immediate ancestors were four-handed, we are two-footed. But when baby gets on the floor, it pulls with its fore and pushes with its hind limbs; just as we once crawled up out of water on to dry land.

Bunk of Palmistry

Palmists rarely read the pad at the outer edge of our palm—or know that we have one like it on the sole of our foot; both protect deep-lying muscles from injury in walking. The palm pad has its own palmar muscle in one man out of every ten. It helped to work the pads which protected the muscles and tendons beneath. Today, it is as atavistic as the pad itself; we gave up walking on our hands about 2,000,000 years ago. As for "lines" of fate and marriage, and the "girdle of Venus," they can all be "read" in the hands and feet of monkeys, and to a certain extent in a baby's foot—or in the fetal hands and feet. Palmistry is as dead as phrenology. Anyone who can read "character" or "mental capacity" from head bumps or palm lines is a wizard and should be paid accordingly.

What does it all mean, this astounding range of variation, on which I have barely touched? There they are, by the thousands, by unnumbered thousands. Shall we say that they lie, that our levator coccygis never lifted a tail, that our curvator coccygis never curved one, and that our attollens auriculam never lifted an ear? Or shall be say that we are walking museums of comparative anatomy and try to find out whence we came and whither we are going? This is certain: there is no fixed, standardized, perfect, or biologically ideal human body, there are no two human bodies quite alike. Each one of us reeks with evidence that our ancestors were not the two-handed, two-footed creatures we are now; that they had no talking muscles; that they could not back up their talk with a speaking countenance; and that they could not balance their heads on their spines.

Hangovers From Past

Some variations are atavistic or vestigial. Like the buttons on our coat cuffs, they no longer function; like parlor boarders, they often make trouble. They are hangovers from a remote past. They are prone to disease; we should be better off without them. Some are retrogressive, weak sisters of our body, functioning in a half-hearted way; we co. do without them—many of us do. Some are progressive, a little bit more than human; they point to further change in man's physical structure.

Taken together, they bridge every gap and make a complete story. They prove that, while our eyes look forward, our body has not forgotten its humble origin—and carries some dead wood we were well rid of, such as appendix, tail, snarling muscle. Our proneness to hernia and prolapse of the uterus is only one of the many proofs that our body is not yet perfectly adapted to an upright gait.

3RD PITTSBURGH BALLOT BOX FOUND EMPTY IN SENATE QUIZ

7TH WARD VOTES GONE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18—Empty ballot box No. 3 has been opened by the Waterman Sub-committee of the Senate Privileges and Elections in its recount of Pittsburgh ballots case in the Vare-Wilson contest of 1926.

Discovery of the third barren, Pittsburgh ballot box was made by the sub-committee late Friday, when recount workers of the committee opened the leather container for the Thirteenth Division of the Seventh Ward the only scrap of paper found was the regulation tally sheet indicating that Senator-elect William S. Vare received 97 votes against 13 for his Democratic opponent, William B. Wilson.

The two previous "blanks" drawn by the committee were boxes in the Tenth and Fourth wards, both in the "Strip" district.

Thomas Cavanaugh, former police captain of Pittsburgh, has shown up in the "Jim" Reed slush fund committee as one of the assistants aiding the Committee of Seventy-six, Philadelphia reform organization, which is supervising the recount. He will remain here until the work is completed, it was stated.

An analysis of the progress made by the committee up to today indicates that the date of the adjournment of Congress, presumably sometime in June just in advance of the national political conventions, will find the task of recounting Pennsylvania ballots incomplete, with the necessity arising for continuing the Vare-Wilson contested election case over until the next session.

Although the Waterman sub-committee now has been going for 10 days only 175 boxes have been examined, including the three "empties" at Pittsburgh. In all A total of 3,901 are to be scrutinized in the state.

Hence at the present rate it would require at least 220 working days to finish the job and open the way for a report to be filed. After the Waterman committee makes its final report the "Jim" Reed Slush Fund Committee will act, and following both reports the contest will have to be decided on the floor of the Senate, which means that interminable debate may be expected.

Only approximately 80 working days remain of the present session, assuming that adjournment will come in June, and how the committee can dispose of the recount by then no one can see in view of the slow progress made to date.

The first seven wards examined in Pittsburgh yielded the three "empties." On this basis the remaining 21 wards should produce about nine more, which would make a total of 12 "surprise packages" for Allegheny county.

PROBE REBELS RILE TEACHER OFFICIALS

Indignation was expressed yesterday by officers of the Pittsburgh Teachers' Association over reported refusals to reply to a questionnaire recently sent out by Dr. Charles Reittell of the University of Pittsburgh in his survey of the teachers' salary situation. It was pointed out that Dr. Reittell's inquiry was made to check up on results of a similar questionnaire issued by the teachers' association last May.

"It will be found that more than 90 per cent of the questionnaires sent out by Dr. Reittell were answered immediately and the information was given cheerfully," declared Miss Maud J. Walker, president of the Pittsburgh Teachers' Association. "Nearly 4,000 persons were questioned, including directors of departments, supervisors, elementary teachers as well as teachers of high, junior high, continuation, vocational and special schools. Teachers realize that they must give the fullest co-operation in the effort to determine an equitable basis for salary increases, and if any refused to answer Dr. Reittell's questions, they were standing in their own light. As a body, we are grateful for the privilege of being of assistance to the teachers' salary committee, and we believe this fact is well understood by members of the committee."

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

by HAVEY J. BOYLE

NO AMUSEMENT enterprise seems to flourish as well as the movies. With several houses of large capacities here the patron who arrives a little late is out of luck. He sometimes must wait nearly an hour to get a seat—then he sees only the second showing of the feature picture—and quite often it is run off with such speed that one suspects the operater must have a date with his girl. One pleasant thing about arriving late is that one often misses the news reels showing the yacht, Victoria II, tuning up for the annual cup race. The interest in yachts in Pittsburgh is close to zero.

THIS FIRST SHOW SHOULD BE OVER IN AN HOUR!
THIS WEEK

A LONG time ago there was considerable interest in rowing here—with fine oarsmen developed—and considerable rivalry among boat clubs. But the young Pittsburghers who heard their fathers talk of thrilling times on the water never followed up the sport.

PITTSBURGH'S waters, the Monongahela, the Allegheny and the majestic Ohio were far more picturesque and inviting in the period which preceded the march of industrial progress which threw up mills and factories along the water line.

The Pittsburgh youngster is accustomed to seeing railroad tracks and furnace stacks along the water routes, but there are oldsters who recall when great houses with sloping terraces running down to the river bank were the order rather than the exception.

THERE are still a few water-dogs in the community. On several occasions this winter a band of intrepid souls have taken a Sunday afternoon dip in the icy Monongahela in the vicinity of the Smithfield Street Bridge. That anyone could get enjoyment out of a swim under such wintry circumstances is difficult to believe, but the day we saw them there was no photographer around, and it is only fair to presume the swimmers enjoyed themselves.

• • •

TAKING a cold bath is said to be great stuff by the brave souls who tell about it, but taking a cold bath always seemed here to be a little like antheism. No one, it is our guess, gets much fun out of either unless one can tell about it.

THIS WATER'S GREAT!

UNLESS there is an improvement soon, a committee for the relief of night clubs in distress will have to be organized. Business, confide the proprietors, is not so good. Youthful patronage has dwindled away and among the less youthful there has been a falling off.

• • •

NIGHT clubs have a hard row to hoe. When business is great the police make stringent regulations. When business is bad, it is like the little girl of the rhyme with a curl straight down her forehead.

THE blight of the night clubs here comes partly from the way the syndicate men in New York kid the butter and egg habitues of Gotham night clubs. The impression that customers of night clubs are taken to be nothing but saps has made self-conscious fellows a little dubious about patronizing butter and egg booths.

Miss Guinan in New York possibly stimulated her trade by nightly greeting her patrons as "Suckers," but it didn't help business in the provinces.

PERSONALLY, we always had more fun at a church strawberry festival or a cake raffle than in the most glittering night club we ever saw. In fact, worldly amusement under watchful church auspices always will seem to this country boy as the best kind. And we read "Elmer Gantry," too.

MONEY LOVE by BEATRICE BURTON

(Copyright, Central Press Association.)

Lily Is Going to Name The Ertz Girl as Co-Respondent

DEEP down in her heart something kept telling her that she was doing Elizabeth Ertz a great wrong. She could not believe that Elizabeth Ertz was the kind of woman who becomes a co-respondent in a divorce case. The kind of woman who takes a man away from his wife, who lets him make love to her, who has no scruples of any kind.

"I ought to give her the benefit of a doubt, anyway," she thought, looking out of the window at the grayness of Montpelier Road. "I suppose the thing to do is to go and talk to Pat's mother about it. She will tell me the truth, and if anybody knows whether he's in love with the Ertz or not, she'll know it."

She went upstairs and put on a brand new hat of pale gray and a pale gray gown to match. Joyous looking, springlike garments that became her wonderfully.

"I may as well look decent, just in case I bump into Pat," she decided.

The little grocery store looked just as it always did, neat and shining and bright, when Lily opened the door of it an hour later. The spicy smell of it made a wave of homesickness go over her, too, laden as it was with the memories of her honeymoon.

Behind the counter Mrs. France was standing, reading a newspaper.

Her face stiffened when she saw Lily and she did not speak.

"Don't be angry with me," Lily said to her, sitting down on a tall stool near her. "I really am doing a pretty decent thing."

And then, without stopping, she plunged straight into her story.

"And this lawyer wants me to name Elizabeth Ertz as co-respondent," she finished. "He says he can do it because I found her alone with Pat in the flat that day. But I won't do it if there's a shadow of a doubt that Pat really likes her."

Mrs. France sniffed. "I never know whom Pat likes," she said crisply, "but you'd better be careful what you say about him and Miss Ertz, young lady. She never has been in his flat alone with him, I know. She and Florence go down there and straighten things up for him once a week. And she is very careful to come here and wait for Florence. They always go together and don't you say things about my son. He's decent. If he hadn't been he wouldn't have stuck to you for so long. Carrying on with another man the way you were. There's plenty of mud could be slung at you, miss."

CHAPTER LV.

MRS. FRANCE'S eyes snapped behind her steel-rimmed glasses, and she thwacked the counter smartly with her small work-roughened hand.

"Don't you come here and talk to me about my son, Pat," she said with a vigorous nod of her small neat looking head. "Just remember that you were no kind of a wife to him at any time."

She stopped talking and with a jerk she turned towards the side door that opened from the side yard of the little white house.

Lily turned too, following her eyes. There stood Pat in his old corduroy pants and shirt sleeves, looking at them from under brows that were twisted into a frown.

He came towards them, his blue eyes shining in the sun that slanted in through the front windows and lay like a rug of gold tissue on the wooden floor.

"What's the matter?" he asked and his voice was so cold and dull that Lily wondered if it could be Pat's voice.

He put his head to one side a little and looked down at her. "Did you come to see me?" he asked, standing close to her. So close that by moving an inch or two Lily could have touched him.

His nearness—the warmth and comfort of him—affected her as they always did, and she wanted to move that inch or two. She ached to throw herself into his arms.

And she would have done it too, if it had not been for his mother, who spoke just at that precise second, in answer to his question.

"I'll tell you what's the matter, Pat," she began. "This woman has come down here to tell me that she is going to drag Elizabeth's name and yours through the divorce court. That's what's the matter, if you want to know."

Lily gasped with surprise, and she heard Pat make a sound that was not quite a gasp or quite a grunt, but a combination of the two. He stepped back quickly, and his face reddened with anger. His eyes narrowed into a single gleam.

"Would you do that?" he asked, "when you know doggoned well that that girl is as pure as any woman that ever walked? And after the thing you did yourself? After the way you stayed out afternoon after afternoon with Drummond, and then came back to me with some cock-and-bull story, wearing clothes and furs that he had given you? Why, if anybody is going to be dragged through the courts you ought to be."

Lily scarcely heard what he said after that first sentence: "When you know that girl is as pure as any woman that ever walked."

It seemed to burn itself into her brain—that sentence, and the tone in which Pat uttered it.

"Why, he speaks of her as if she were an angel instead of the woman who is trying to take him away from me, in all probability," she said to herself, and all of her jealousy of the meek-faced little nurse blazed up within her like a fire fanned by a high wind.

"Don't talk to me about her, Pat France," she said to him. "We'd be living together, and perfectly happy today if it hadn't been for her. She's been after you from the very day we were married—getting Sadye Jetterson to give a party for us just so she could have her there, too. She's chased you in her quiet, underhanded way and she still is. And you know it, and if I want to name her in my divorce suit I'm going to, and you just try to stop me."

And then, before anyone could stop her from going, she slipped from the high stool where she had been sitting and was out of the door at the front of the shop and into her mother's old car that waited at the curb.

"I'll do it, too. I'll fix them both," she promised herself furiously, going through the humble streets of the neighborhood that once had been like home to her. She never had liked them, even when they had been homelike and familiar to her, and she fairly hated them now.

"How did I ever get into such a place and in with such people?" she asked herself, turning towards the heart of the town. She was going straight to the lawyer's office to tell him to go ahead with her divorce just as fast as he could do it. She was full of resentment and a strong desire for revenge.

At 12 o'clock, when she left his office high up in the Elkins Building tower, the noon-tide bells were ringing.

She knew that she ought to go home and help her mother with the endless round of household tasks—the polishing and sweeping and cooking and mending. She knew that she was expecting her for lunch, too.

"But I'm not going home," Lily decided. "I'm too blue and miserable."

In her misery she turned towards Staley, who, after all, had all sorts of amusing things to do at the end of his purse strings.

"Take me to lunch," she commanded him when she burst unceremoniously into his private office, and then, in the doorway, she stopped.

For Staley's private secretary, a sweet-faced little blonde woman whom Lily had often noticed and honestly admired was sitting on the corner of Staley's desk, with her hands on his shoulders, and Staley's hair was rumpled as if she had been fussing with it.

She turned and flushed a guilty red when she heard Lily open the door and Staley, very much flustered, jumped to his feet, smoothing down his hair with both hands.

"Oh," said Lily. "You're all alike, aren't you? All you men—"

It was a trite and silly thing to say, but millions of women have said it and have meant it, too, just as she meant it then.

She barely noticed the little blonde secretary when she slunk out of the office. Her eyes were on Staley, and so were her thoughts.

"Here he is, wildly in love with me, so he thinks," she said to herself, "but he carries on a common love affair with that little woman. If I married him—"

Oh, well, what if he did not behave himself after she married him? What if he did go on having these small and unimportant love affairs? Did it make any real difference?

"I never will care for him, anyway," she thought, coldly, "and the less I have to see him the better, I suppose, and in the meantime I'll be safe from poverty and hard work—"

Another thought was in the back of her head. She might not have to live all her days with Staley. Divorce, now that she had come close to the idea of it, seemed so easy.

She did not realize how immoral her thought process was at this time. It did not come to her that when a woman gets away from true love and decency, her feet slide very easily and swiftly into bottomless depths.

To Sue Cain, now Sue Eastman, Lily had always said her soul. And it was to Sue Cain that she went with her new problem—the problem of Staley and the little blonde secretary.

"Suppose I go ahead and get my divorce and then he doesn't want to marry me?" she asked Sue, who laughed her to scorn.

"Don't be a sap," said the practical Sue, "Just because he kisses an office vamp doesn't mean that he's off you. He was just amusing himself. The smart thing for you to do is to go ahead and get your divorce just as fast as you can. Staley adores you, but he's not going to wait forever, you know."

"I'm getting my divorce. I've started it," answered Lily, and began to cry quietly into her handkerchief in that smart public place, the Park Lane restaurant, where people come to smoke and to eat and to drink and to flirt and make love, but never to cry.

CHAPTER LVI.

SUE, who was as hard and bright as new nails, stared at her with disgust and surprise written in her snapping dark eyes.

"For grief's sake, brace up!" she said, in a tone that was itself bracing. "Everybody in the place will be looking at you in a minute."

And Lily did brace up, casting a furtive look around the restaurant to see if anyone had noticed that she had broken down.

But no one in the restaurant had.

All the beautifully dressed women, with their beautifully waved hair, their flower-like skins, their dieted bodies and expensive clothes, were busily chatting over their non-fattening foods.

They were much too interested in themselves and their own affairs to be anything but briefly curious about anyone's else misery.

"And Sue's just like them," thought Lily, bitterly, as Sue pushed her own vanity case across the table cloth and told her for "the love of Moses in the bull rushes" to fix up her face and go on with her alligator-pear salad. "She's just as selfish and cold as she can be."

Sue was humming "Blue Heaven" to herself, and looking out of the window between puffs at a long gold-tipped Russian cigaret.

"What on earth ailed you? Going to pieces like that?" she asked, when Lily had dried her eyes, put on fresh lipstick and picked up her salad fork. "I should think you'd be tickled to pieces because you're getting rid of that no-good husband of yours."

Lily sniffed delicately. "I am," she said.

Well, she was in a way, she thought. She was glad to be out of the stuffy little flat, with its washing machine and its ugly furniture.

She was glad to be here, with Staley's lilies of the valley pinned upon her breast, orchid perfume that he had given her scenting her handkerchief, monogrammed cigarets from him filling her cigaret case that was a gift from him, too.

"Oh, I'm all mixed up, Sue." She went on, after a minute. "I know I'm going to get this divorce all right, but somehow I don't feel right about it."

Sue was impatient. "Oh, no one ever feels right about anything," she answered. "Look at Jack, for instance. He didn't want to marry me on the very day we were married. He said so. He thought we were both too high-tempered to get along well. . . . Don't be silly, Lily Lexington. You made a fool marriage and you have a chance to marry a prince like Staley, whom you should have married in the first place. You're mighty lucky, so why sing grief?"

Why sing grief?

Lily kept asking herself that all the way back to Montpelier road in the warm, early dusk that somehow smelled of the spring, that was so close at hand.

Here she was back among her own kind again, ready to be freed and to make the brilliant marriage that everyone had expected her to make almost a year before. She was lucky to be able to do that. It was like a miracle, almost.

STOMACH UPSET

Get at the real cause. That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. Know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain. All druggists.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like. 15c, 30c, 60c.

Final Preparations for the Dinner Party With a Specter of Sorrow Brooding

MARY'S extravagant but patently heartfelt little simile about being dipped in boiling oil haunted me during the short interval between our call at The Larches and the arrival of our guests on Saturday afternoon. I was glad that the hours were filled to overflowing with preparations for the dinner, which, though I meant it to be informal as our usual welcome home to Lillian and her daughter, caused me a good deal of worry because of the expected presence of Philip Veritzen, Eleanor Lincoln and young Jackson.

From experience and from his reputation I knew that there was no more fastidious nor critical man anywhere than Philip Veritzen. My observation told me that young Mr. Jackson and Miss Lincoln were also used to the last word in dining service and appointments. It was useless to tell myself not to worry, nor to anticipate mental criticism on the part of my guests. I had more qualms over this dinner than ever had been my lot in any entertainment of our friends since my marriage.

I had but one solace, that I had not attempted anything really elaborate, anything which would in any way appear to emulate the kind of dinner which I guessed that all three of them were used to giving and receiving. I had acquiesced in Katie's time-honored dinner for Marion when coming to the farmhouse, contenting myself with adding an extra light course or two, that my fastidious guests might have a choice of lighter viands if they did not care for the heavy dishes which were the hungry schoolgirl's favorites.

I spent my time upon the rooms which Katie under Mother Graham's driving direction had made immaculate. I rearranged books and pictures, saw to it that silvers and brasses shone, and that the hangings and table scarves were fresh with no suggestion of a wrinkle. And on the morning of the day when our guests were expected, I rose early and with Jim's help culled hundreds of blossoms which with Katherine and Mary's aid I put in every flower receptacle we had.

The result quieted even my misgivings. The low-ceilinged old-fashioned rooms with bookcases covering every available inch of space never had looked more beautiful. I found myself echoing Katherine's dictum as, after the last bowl had been filled with yellow roses, she looked contemplatively over the room and remarked:

"This is my ideal of what a home should look like. If ever a room could be christened 'Home, sweet home!' it is this one."

But following close upon my agreement with her verdict came a stabbing, disturbing thought. The room—in fact, the whole house—was indeed the fitting frame of a happy home. But how much happiness did it enclose?

Over me for a miserable second swept a loathing of myself and of Dicky for the manner in which we had permitted our happiness to be dragged through the mire. Honesty compelled me to the admission that in our last quarrel Dicky had been far more to blame than I—the horrible remembrance of his unfaith, his awful suspicion of me, still seared my soul whenever I thought of it, but I knew also that I was not guiltless of the wreck which we had made of our happiness.

Bird Trimming

Fine feathers make fine birds and fine birds make one of the most novel trimmings for chiffon evening gowns. One of the most striking models of the season was of violet chiffon, with a full skirt, short in front and gracefully sweeping the ground in back. A long bird, of jade green ostrich feathers, was posed at the right side of the skirt, its head at the waistline and its tail feathers following the lip of the uneven hemline.

SUNDAY'S horoscope shows signs of an eventful day, with possible change or travel of benefit and with other advantages in employment or through letters, writings or dealings with elders. Financial advantages are shown also.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of important events, with beneficial changes or journeys and with financial growth through employment, business contracts and through elders.

A child born on this day may have many excellent qualities making for success through invention, skill or business sagacity. It should be versatile and responsible.

Notable Nativity: David Garrick, actor.

Monday, February 20

Fluctuating fortunes and much diligent labor and enterprise with but little financial return seem to be the augury from this day's sidereal operations. Personal affairs may assume some subtle or singular aspects, but these may later come to the fore for adjustment.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of fluctuations in the fortunes, although there may be labor and initiative with deferred benefits. In personal matters there are foreseen intrigue or subtlety.

A child born on this day should be diligent, stable and resourceful, but may be subject to ups and downs as well as to subtlety and intrigue.

Notable Nativity: Mary Garden, prima donna.

IRISH SET FOR PITT; DEFEAT TECH

SPORT COMMENT

by JAMES J. LONG

WILL the sensational run of the University of Pittsburgh's basketball team be broken tonight, when Coach Carlson's passers encounter the crack Notre Dame quintet at the Panther Stadium?

Cliff Carlson.

That's the big question today in local basketball circles, the appearance of the Hoosiers against Carnegie Tech last night apparently having failed to give the fans a convincing line on their form or their possibilities.

ON PAPER it looks as if Pitt would have an edge at the finish. In piling up 14 straight victories to date against teams that rank with the best in the East and Middle West, the Panthers have made themselves look like a team of such exceptional class that they may not be beaten this season, and it will not be surprising if they ring up their fifteenth consecutive win at the expense of the South Benders tonight.

It is doubtful if so much interest in a college basketball game has ever been aroused here before, and it is estimated that fully 10,000 persons would attend the game if the stadium court were large enough to accommodate that number.

MANAGER BILL M'KECHNIE and Coach Jack Onslow of the St. Louis Nationals steamed out of Pittsburgh last night on the first lap of the spring training trip. They will spend today in St. Louis and will start with the squad tomorrow for the Cardinal conditioning camp.

Skipper Bill was making no pennant claims when he departed with Onslow, but many smart baseball men are of the opinion that St. Louis is the club that the Pirates will have to beat out to repeat.

FEW followers of the diamond pastime who are familiar with the ways of the modern ball player in business matters are taking any stock in the report that Urban Shocker, veteran spitball pitcher of the New York Americans, has retired permanently from the sports.

Urban Shocker

And this in spite of the fact that Shocker himself made the announcement, apparently in all seriousness in a telegram to the New York club.

The fact that Shocker sent the telegram following receipt of a letter from the New York club which probably was accompanied by a contract, indicates that it was merely a polite way of informing the Yankee owners that the terms offered were not satisfactory.

In short, it looks like nothing more than a plain, old-fashioned holdout.

JOHNNY CUMMINGS, the North Side catcher, will not be the only baseball product of this district on the New York Giant squad

CHILLY SAUCE

By CHILLY DOYLE

Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

HUTCHINSON, Kan., Feb. 18.—There is a youth of 34 aboard the Pirate special who appears to be able to overpower any of the powerful boys of 20 who are striving for big-league fame and fortune. Burleigh Grimes reported to Manager Bush weighing a bit more than 190 and this after riding horseback, living in the woods and in a general way leading a rough life.

GRIMES today explained why he went to Minerva, Ohio, to make his home. Minerva is the same Ohio town that sent two other Grimes boys into the great game, but Burleigh is no kin to these athletes. The Wisconsin strong boy went to his present home on account of close association with Hi Myers, former star of the Dodgers, who now is a stockholder and cashier in a bank of Minerva.

Myers, an East Liverpool youth, was a topliner in the National League for many years. He and Grimes played for Brooklyn over a long stretch and they were close to each other in the off-season. Burleigh has gone in strong for horses and fox hunting.

RIDING to the hounds is great stuff to keep one fit, according to the spitball pitcher.

"Did you ever see a cowboy with a bay window?" asked Burleigh in speaking on the subject of riding.

Grimes, through others, will soon open a motion picture theater in Minerva, apparently the pitcher is getting along fairly well in a business way. Nevertheless, he expects to be taking his regular turn on the mound for many years to come.

More Pirates Join Buc Vanguard

Earl Smith, Linton Added to Squad

HUTCHINSON, KAN., Feb. 18.—The vanguard of Pirates composed of most of the pitchers and catchers of the club roster rushed into this Kansas town this morning for breakfast, moving along smoothly on the way to their California training camp. The advance squad of diamond performers is in charge of Manager Donie Bush. After partaking of their morning meal the baseball representatives of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania's great city sped onward, they being due to reach Syracuse in time for luncheon. The health of the party is fine, according to Trainer George Asten. Pitcher Charles Walsh, one of the rookies, suffered some with a sore throat, but the ailment has responded to treatment.

Beginning this morning and continuing until the train reaches Los Angeles, the players will disembark from the train to eat their meals. The flyer stops 30 minutes for each repast. The stop-overs are much enjoyed, as they afford an opportunity

HUDKINS DROPS BAKER TWICE, WINS GO

By ROBERT A. HEREFORD,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, February 18.—A wild swipe from the flailing paw of the Nebraska Wildcat in the second round of his 10-round fight with Sergeant Sammy Baker at Madison Square Garden last night, which sent the soldier boy kicking for the count of nine, played a big part in giving Ace Hudkins, of Lincoln, the decision in the important "rubber" bout.

Hudkins also dropped Baker in the sixth. There was a cry of low blow but the referee apparently had not seen it that way and he ordered Baker to his feet and the soldier rose at the count of nine.

The fight between the wild Nebraska Wildcat and the Mitchell Field soldier boy was one of the fastest seen in Tex Rickard's fight palace in many moons. Each had won a decision in a former fight and the "rubber" bout was to decide an opponent for Champion Baltimore Joe Dundee in a title contest.

The Wildcat was wild. Both knockdowns came as the result of wild swings. The blow which dropped Baker in the sixth was a low swinging left. Another wild pass by the Wildcat opened up a deep wound in Baker's lower lip in the fifth which bled constantly

Fifth Avenue Cops Section 1 Crown

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER

IN ELIMINATING Schenley High School's five as a sectional contender, much less a championship contender, Fifth Avenue High School last night completely out-played, out-skilled and out-fought the famed Bellefielders to win decisively, 32 to 22, on the spacious court in the Pitt Stadium pavilion. Close to 3,000 persons thronged the grandstand to see the crucial Section 1, City League clash—and they got their money's worth, too. The champion was crowned deservingly.

And what a game it was! Schenley got away to a whirlwind lead in the first quarter, and before Coach Briggs knew it his clever proteges were trailing, 8-2. Yet as the period closed the Bellefielders were behind, 9-8. There was little scoring done in the second, Fifth getting the better by one point, holding a 13-11 lead.

It appeared the game was going to be a hair-line victory for one team or the other as the third period progressed, for neither quint seemed strong enough to break away for any sort of a lead—and at the gun Schenley held the advantage, 18-17.

Without the services of J. Moore, Schenley would have taken a much worse beating; he seemed to be the only one who could do anything.

South Hills resumed its winning ways in Section II with a triumph over Langley, 41-17 and remained tied with Allegheny for the lead. Allegheny scored a 25-12 win over Oliver yesterday afternoon.

In Section III of the W. P. I. A. L., Butler High went into a tie with New Castle for the lead by defeating Coach Bridenbaugh's Castleites 14-11 in a close guarding game at Butler. Down in Section VI, Beaver High failed to stop the rush of the Aliquippa High quintet, which copped the honors in that section by taking a 37-27 win over the County Seaters.

Braddock kept its lead in Section VII safe by downing Monessen in a close game by a 25-22 score.

YANKEES SCORE IN OLYMPICS

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, Feb. 18.—(AP.)—The American bobsleigh team headed by William Fiske today made the best time in the first descent in the winter Olympics. Another descent will be made tomorrow, the total times to determine the winner.

The Fiske team made the run down the Olympic chute in one minute, 38 9-10 seconds. Belgium was second and Argentine third.

In Olympic hockey games today, Canada defeated Great Britain, 14-0, and Sweden defeated Switzerland, 4-0. At no time were the Canadians extended to win. William Stanley Speechley, the British goal keeper, withstood a continuous bombardment, stopping at least 150 cannon-ball shots.

SHOTS and PASSES by Julius Levin

FOLLOWERS of professional basketball in this section are convinced they have witnessed their last Allegheny County League games as a result of the withdrawals of Butler and Braddock as franchise holders, reducing the league membership to only four teams, hardly enough to warrant a third cycle of play as originally planned.

Not a compact circuit from the very outset, the disintegration of the leading professional basketball circuit in this section does not come as a surprise to the supporters of the sport hereabouts.

With the Duquesne Lafayettes, last year's champions, already established winners of the first and second rounds of play, there hardly is any chance of the league officials agreeing to continue the season with only four teams enrolled as members.

Handicapped at the outset through their inability to muster sufficient strong clubs to form an eight-club circuit, the officials were compelled to organize a league with six clubs. The season was not very old when several changes were necessary in the personnel of the league to strengthen its weak points.

BUTLER'S withdrawal from the league can be traced to the protest filed by the Enoch Rauh club following their two-point defeat in Butler last Saturday night. The protest eventually was awarded to the Pittsburghers.

A member of the Tri-State Officials' Association was assigned to handle the game as required by the league rules, but when the two clubs appeared on the floor the appointed official was not on hand to take charge of the contest.

Rather than disappoint their supporters the Veterans of Foreign Wars obtained the services of a West Penn official, who is compelled to enforce the four-personal foul rule, a rule that has been waived by the members of the County League. The Rauhs agreed to go through with the game, filing a protest before the first ball was tossed.

The league authorities at a recent meeting awarded the protest to the Rauhs, and Butler, unable to understand why it should be deprived of a victory through the failure of a Tri-State referee to appear, withdrew rather than accept the ruling.

THE protested game left the officials of the league in an embarrassing position. The league rulings call for all traveling clubs to pay their own expenses when playing abroad. The Rauhs, although allowed the protest, declined to replay the game in Butler without being assured of a guarantee sufficient to pay their expenses, while the Butler management refused to stand the expenses for a play-off contest.

Butler cannot be condemned for its attitude in the controversy, for it was in no way responsible for the non-appearance of the referee.

The breakup of the County League leaves the circuit no worse than it was at the start of the schedule. The Duquesne Lafayettes, continuing their brilliant play of last year, captured the title in both rounds of play already completed, thus making it unnecessary to stage an elimination series at the close of the season.

DRIBBLES

The Reliance Life passers, victors over the J. J. Mieles last Wednesday night, will attempt to score their second successive P. & O. League victory tonight, when they meet the Siano Club on the Ingram Junior High School floor. of this city, against Carnegie Tech last night, are not particularly enthusiastic today regarding the Irisher's chances of stopping Pitt, a feat they will attempt out in the Stadium tonight.

The Panthers will be making their fifteenth start of the season tonight. They are undefeated.

Notre Dame defeated the Tartans 31-19, establishing a 12-point margin over the Skibos mainly through some accurate field goaling in the second half. They did not appear to be calling upon any speed and dash at any time, and while Coach Keogan used a varied lineup, a rather helter-skelter combination of regulars and reserves, the style of play employed by the Irish didn't seem to be the sort adapted to beating Pitt's greyhound play.

There is no doubt but that Notre Dame played under wraps to some extent. They were forced much after the first few minutes of play, when the Skibos got away to a four-point lead. Tech didn't seem to know what it was all about during the first half, and played nervously, passed inaccurately and did several things that good college basketball teams should not do. Notre Dame led at half time 13-8.

Coach Keogan, who, by the way, used to coach at Allegheny College, didn't send in the men who have been appearing regularly in the lineup until the second half. Capt. Jackym, Crowe, Hamilton and Smith were inserted into the fray about midway in the second period. Vogelwede, a big center, flipped in three baskets while he was in the game in the second half to keep the Irish well out in front. McCarthy, a forward was the high point gatherer, with a total of nine. He bagged four field goals, as many as were scored by the entire Tech team.

Tonight's game is billed to start at 8 p. m. The ticket booths will open at 6:30, and Pitt officials report that plenty of seats will be available. There will be no preliminary tussle.

Chick Davies and his Dukes of Duquesne are in Gotham today for a battle with City College of New York this evening. The Dukes pulled out last night after viewing the Notre Dame-Tech contest.

Other tristate games tonight feature Allegheny and Westminster at New Wilmington and Grove City and West Virginia at Morgantown.

Meet Gotham Six Tonight

GAMES TONIGHT.
N. Y. Americans at Pittsburgh
Toronto at Montreal
Canadiens at Ottawa

By CARL W. SHATTO

THE New York Americans, the only club in the National Hockey League that the Pirates have not defeated this season, are to form the reception committee at Duquesne Garden at 8:30 this evening when the men of Cleghorn, back from a successful road trip, attempt to show local fans how they clambered into a pay-off and play-off berth while abroad.

Recent developments in the league race would indicate that the Americans will be "push-overs" for the Bucs, but statistics on past Pirates-Americans battles prompts the belief that the local knights of the shimmering sheen will be lucky to escape with nothing more damaging than a tie. In the past two years the Pirates have been able to tally only one goal against Gotham's bespangled icemen, and victory never has been Pittsburgh's lot. All of which would indicate that the local puckmen might as well forfeit to the invaders and spend the evening reading Shakespeare, but—

In their last eight games the Bucs have annexed no less than six victories and one tie, the while climbing from the cellar to a position near the crest by bowling over powerful foemen who have subdued the Americans so regularly that it has become a habit. Last Tuesday the Pirates squelched Toronto, 4-2, on Toronto ice, and on Thursday Toronto invaded New York and toppled the Americans, 3-2. This would indicate that the locals are several goals better than the visitors, but when the plot is thickened by consideration of the jinx the Americans hold over the Bucs, the only safe conclusion is that there will be a hot time in the old town tonight.

Today the Pirates and Detroit Cougars are tied for the play-off position. The Cougars' next game will be with the Chicago Hawks at Detroit tomorrow night, and the Hawks are very easy to defeat. A word to the wise is sufficient.

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

this spring during the training period at Augusta, Ga.

Western Pennsylvania fans will have another favorite to watch in the person of Outfielder Joe Klinger, Canonsburg boy.

Klinger last year had a big season with the Norfolk club of the Virginia League, where he performed under a New York option. Joe batted .330 in the Class B circuit and did well in all other departments.

At the conclusion of the Virginia League race, Klinger was recalled and he pleased McGraw by his work.

The Giants first obtained Joe from the Clarksburg club of the Middle Atlantic League.

APPARENTLY, there has been some sort of mix-up between the Pirate management and the friends of the Pittsburgh club who recommended three young players for tryouts with the Buccaneers this spring.

Traven Waner

When Traven Waner, a cousin of Paul and Lloyd, was tipped off to the Pittsburgh club last fall as worthy of a looking-over, the impression was given that he was a left-hand pitcher.

Recently, when President Dreyfuss and Manager Bush were urged to take a look at John Deering and Parker Brewer it was reported that both youngsters were outfielders.

NOW that everything has been straightened out it develops that Waner is not a pitcher but an outfielder, that Brewer is the same and that Deming, instead of being an outfielder, is a pitcher.

The fact that Waner is a fly-chaser suggests the possibility that Pittsburgh might have an outfield made up of three Waners if the youngest of them were to come through this year or later. The possibility is remote, of course, but you never can tell what any player named Waner is likely to accomplish.

PIRATES

for fresh air and considerable exercise.

The Waner baseball game is getting a big play by the veterans and rookies as they travel the open spaces. Socko McCarry, clubhouse boy, has challenged everybody from Donie Bush right down the line to the women in the party. Mrs. Samue Dreyfuss and Mrs. Burleigh Grimes are traveling with their husbands to the Paso Robles camp.

Socko was one of the few travelers stirring when the train pulled into Kansas City after midnight. Anxious to greet Earl Smith, the devoted clubhouse boy kept the late vigil for Oil of the Ozarks.

Coach Jewel Ens and Catcher Claude Linton also hopped aboard at Kansas City. No others will be picked up until the arrival at Los Angeles on Monday morning.

A wild but pretty blizzard entertained the tourists through most of yesterday, snow welcomed them into Chicago and the whole afternoon was spent in blazing a trail through a snowstorm that swept over the expansive prairies from out of the West.

The journey is a source of deep delight to the rookies aboard, the youngsters being in the majority. If the trip would continue for a month these youngsters apparently would not get tired.

The boys expect to be in Colorado for their evening meal. The train cuts through a small section of that state late today, the schedule calling for dinner at Trinidad. Some time later the flyer will enter New Mexico.

throughout the remainder of the fight.

Hudkins won six of the 10 rounds and is now qualified to meet Champion Joe Dundee for the title. The two were matched recently in Los Angeles but Dundee failed to appear for the match and drew a suspension.

Baker's best fighting weapon was a vicious right uppercut. He staggered Hudkins with a right to the jaw in the eighth which had the Nebraskan holding on for his life.

The usual feeling out process at the start was disregarded and the soldier boy and the Nebraska Wildcat were at each other sabre and claw as the opening gong sounded. Hudkins followed his usual forcing style and flung rights and lefts in every direction. One wild right caught Sergeant Sammy flush on the point of the jaw towards the close of the first round and staggered the fighting man.

Grid Head Here For Probe

By TOM BIRKS.

WITH the semi-final of the Western Pennsylvania senior cup tie featuring Pittsburgh Rovers and the German Sport Club carded for this afternoon at the Westinghouse High School field, and the presence of Andrew M. Brown, national President, in Pittsburgh to conduct a hearing this evening to try and straighten out the soccer situation in this district, soccerites locally have plenty to keep them busy today.

The fight at the High School field should easily be one of the best of the season. The Rovers have won this trophy once, but the Sport club is fighting to enter the finals for the first time in this club's history.

The soccer session this evening again brings soccer's foremost personage in the United States to our midst. And again he comes trying to straighten out a soccer tangle. The newly created officials welcome his presence into this territory, and the national official will, the writer is sure, leave with the idea that a hard working bunch of fellows are trying to put the game where it belongs.

MICHIGAN PROSPERS

University of Michigan football games attracted 465,065 fans last year, who paid $560,151 to witness the games. The paid attendance at the Ohio State, Minnesota and Navy games exceeded $84,000 in each case.

TWO KNOCKOUTS MARK LYCEUM AMATEUR SHOW

Two knockouts featured the amateur boxing show presented by the Pittsburgh Lyceum in its gymnasium last night. The summary:

Mike Fortunata, Mt. Washington, knocked out Tommy Vescio, 3 rounds.

Dominick Propo, Pittsburgh Lyceum, knocked out Joe Blaner, North Side A. C., 2 rounds.

Bobby Wilson, unattached, defeated Mickey Labelle, unattached, 3 rounds.

Slippy Lehr, North Side A. C., defeated Sylvester Pastorius, Pittsburgh Lyceum, 4 rounds.

Tom Malco, Pittsburgh Lyceum, defeated Hughey Fetzer, North Side A. C., 3 rounds. William Simendinger and Ditty Woods were the judges and Cy Seibert referee.

WESTON, W. V., Feb. 18.—In a recent basketball game between Marshall College and Glenville State Teachers, the two teams tossed in every foul goal attempt awarded them by the referee. Glenville made eight goals in eight attempts and Marshall seven in seven.

A pioneer of TODAY

The pioneer spirit did not die with Daniel Boone. Nor did the days of the covered wagon and the gold rush to California mark the passing of the pioneer from the scene.

There are pioneers today—pioneers in science, in invention, in business. The American Oil Company was truly a pioneer when it created the first special motor fuel—AMOCO GAS. Far in advance of the rest of the oil industry, research and laboratory work resulted in the discovery of this anti-knock motor fuel—and not until long afterward did others make feeble attempts to imitate its special qualities.

The American Oil Company was the first to advocate and introduce the visible gasoline pump—a protection to motorists everywhere.

Now AMOCO-GAS is pioneering in the skies! The longest non-stop flight—made by Chamberlin from New York to Germany—was made on AMOCO-GAS. The great U. S. Army Pan-American flight was made on AMOCO-GAS and AMOCO Motor Oil exclusively—20,000 miles of faultless performance.

There are still pioneers—natural leaders by right of foresight and accomplishment. And high on that list must go the name of The American Oil Company.

Forbes

Yes, the West Is Becoming Impressively Air-Minded.

By B. C. FORBES

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 14.

HENRY FORD says that flying is for young men—until Lindbergh hopped along the auto maker had never left the ground. Perhaps it is appropriate that the young, dynamic, forward-looking West should take up aeronautics enthusiastically and aspire to achieve leadership in the infant aircraft industry.

Everywhere you go in the West the talk is much more of flying than it is in the East. Why?

Has not transportation always been a tremendous problem for the West? How we honor the Lewis and Clark trail-blazers! How we honor the covered-wagon pioneers—a motion picture depicting them has proved a strong enough magnet to draw millions of present-generation folks. There were stagecoach heroes, and then came the railroad builders, giants who were accorded tremendous acclaim in their day. Crossing the continent by motor car next was hailed as a notable milestone in the quickening of transportation.

THE Panama Canal bulks much larger in the daily consciousness of the far West than of the East. It has wrought a silent revolution of incalculable economic consequences and has been a factor in the social life of the West—see the lists published almost daily of voyages through the canal from East to West and West to East.

TO THE credit of the West be it said that the West is more conscious of the benefit of better acquaintance with the East than the East is conscious of the benefit—the need—of better acquaintance with the West. I fear there is truth in the universal charge that big-city easterners, especially New Yorkers, are provincial.

The West sees in flying the ideal solution of the transportation problem, the ideal means of wiping out the disadvantages of vast distances, the ideal medium for bringing the different sections of the nation closer together.

MY opinion happens to be that we are still several years away from the time when flivvers of the air will be as common as flivvers of the road. Yet Los Angeles already has a notably successful commercial aviation enterprise, the Western Air Express, which has made a daily trip in each direction between Los Angeles and Salt Lake City for two years without a single accident. It is paying dividends of 8 per cent a year.

Recently it opened a line between Cheyenne and Pueblo, 200 miles. But its larger objective is to inaugurate regular service between Los Angeles and San Francisco. Flying time, three hours for the 400 miles.

Says President Harris M. Hanshue:

"The air-mindedness of Southern California is evidenced by the extraordinary support given this line. Forty per cent of all air mail either comes into or goes out of this section. Very evidently Southern California is taking world leadership in air transportation. Our Los Angeles-San Francisco line will be, we believe, 10 years ahead of anything similar in Europe."

CURIOUSLY, neither Los Angeles nor San Francisco has airport facilities comparable with those of Oakland. But a very capable local public-minded citizen, Ben R. Meyer, is now chairman of the aeronautics committee of the Chamber of Commerce and he tells me that things will be different by the time I return. Los Angeles owes itself a real, up-to-the-minute airport worthy of the Coast's largest metropolis.

VERY keen interest is taken in the plans of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company to build an extensive establishment here for the building of lighter-than-air flying ships, a project which should enlist the active support of the government.

One responsible citizen writes:

"You should tell the people of America about the achievements of the Ryan planes, particularly the 'Spirit of St. Louis;' the success of the Douglas plant at Santa Monica, which has been awarded the contract for the bulk of the Navy planes; the pre-eminent position of the Western Air Express, which has outstripped all others in carrying air mail, and other activities."

YES, the west is becoming impressively air-minded.

RUSH TO SELL IN STOCKS RESUMED

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(AP.)—The reactionary price movement in the stock market, which reached considerable violence in the last hour of trading yesterday, was resumed at the opening today. Overnight margin calls apparently had brought in fresh liquidation. Early declines of 1 to 1½ points were recorded by Midland Steel Products preferred, Radio Corporation, Freeport Texas and Johns Manville.

The early decline was an orderly one. Trading was in relatively small volume, which was construed as an indication of the absence of any extensive forced liquidation. Short-covering also acted as a buffer to absorb the selling shocks.

United States Steel common and General Motors received fairly good support, showing only fractional recessions. Freeport Texas extended its opening decline to 3 points by touching 68, as compared with a high of 109½ earlier in the year. Texas Gulf Sulphur, which reached a peak of 80¾ a few weeks ago, reacted 1 point over night to 69½.

More than a score issues dipped a point or so in the first half hour, the list including Montgomery-Ward, International Cement, Mack Trucks, Pullman, Reynolds Tobacco B, International Nickel and Westinghouse Electric.

Foreign exchanges opened steady, with sterling cables quoted at $4.87 9-16.

PITTSBURGH PLATE SCORES FURTHER RALLY HERE

LONE STAR GAS SLIDES OFF

Prices held steady on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange during the short week-end session today. There was a somewhat nervous tone evident but no selling of any importance developed.

Pittsburgh Plate Glass enjoyed a further recovery of two points, selling up to 225 as compared with sales at 220 yesterday, the bottom quotation on the issue since it reached 235 at the beginning of the week. The upturn in Pittsburgh Plate this morning was accepted as confirming the view that the previous reaction was due to technical conditions brought about by the sudden jump from around 210 to 235 in the course of a few days.

Volume of dealings today was light and such movements as did occur in the main list were generally of fractional scope. Carnegie Metals slid down a little and National Fireproofing preferred sold again at the low of the current movement. Lone Star Gas dropped a fraction to 55, as bids were withdrawn pending completion of the immediate liquidating movement on the New York market.

SUN ASSURANCE SHOWS LARGE GAIN IN U. S.

While new business of the Sun Life Assurance Company, of Canada, whose annual statement appears in another column, showed a general increase in 1927 of 23 per cent over that of 1926, its business in the United States last year was nearly 50 per cent in excess of that of the 12 months immediately preceding. This expansion is the more remarkable because taken as a whole the insurance companies operating in North America showed very little increase in 1927, as compared with 1926.

Ray H. Finger, local manager of the Sun Life Assurance Company, whose district comprises 14 counties in Western Pennsylvania, wrote over $4,000,000 of insurance in 1927, a 31 per cent increase over 1926. Mr. Finger stated today that the company is rapidly enlarging its organization in this district. Mr. Finger's staff is now composed of 40 men. The local office is in rooms 816-17 Frick Building.

Progressiveness and strength were indicated in the annual report submitted by President Macauley to the stockholders and policyholders at the annual meeting held recently. The total amount of insurance now approaches the billion and a half mark, and showed an increase of $221,500,000 for the year, while the total net income exceeded $100,000,000 and was five times as great as it was 10 years ago.

There were paid to policyholders and beneficiaries of death claims and matured endowments during the year over $42,000,000. The company has paid out under this head, since its organization, over $200,000,000. The assets of the company have been increased by over $56,000,000, and now amount to $400,000,000, or almost the amount of its total insurance in force only eight years ago.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—The cotton market opened barely steady today at unchanged prices to a decline of 4 points under renewed liquidation. May contracts selling off to 17.92 and October to 17.85 by the end of the first hour, or about 9 to 12 points net lower. Trade buying appeared to absorb contracts on a scale down, which steadied the undertone of the market, but buying otherwise was attributed chiefly to covering.

Relatively steady cables from Liverpool were attributed to trade calling and covering on the more hopeful labor situation in the Lancashire mills.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 120,440 bales, against 182,022 last year.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Paper Losses Heavy

The stock market yesterday suffered its most violent break in nearly two years as the result of heavy selling, which came to a climax in the closing hour. A depreciation in values estimated at more than a billion dollars was indicated in the closing quotations. In number of issues dealt in, the market set a new high record. The break was not unexpected as the Street had been warned by the action of the Federal Reserve banks in recent raising of rediscount rates and by the repeated increases in brokers' loans that a state of tension existed.

Vacuum Oil Earnings

Preliminary estimates on Vacuum Oil Company's 1927 net earnings range from $9 to $10 a share on 3,498,832 capital shares. Year-end adjustments, an important item in oil reports for last year, may change the picture considerably either way. Returns from foreign subsidiaries, which are probably not yet complete, also are an important factor. Company reported net of $9.65 a share for 1926. Vacuum's refining profits last year showed a good increase over 1926, due to lower crude oil prices and unchanged market levels for Vacuum lubricants, the company's principal product. Foreign business also expanded.

ACQUIT DEATH TAXI DRIVER

Michael Johansky, taxicab driver, was acquitted of a charge of involuntary manslaughter in Criminal Court yesterday before Visiting Judge Miles I. Potter in connection with the death of Peter P. Stanfel, 37, of 2321 Fifth avenue, from a fractured skull suffered in a collision June 14 last at Fifth avenue and Moultrie street.

The defendant testified that he was driving his cab out Fifth avenue with four passengers at a speed of about 15 miles an hour when Stanfel, driving a Ford, at a high rate of speed, in Fifth avenue, swung suddenly into Moultrie street, striking the cab and careening to the sidewalk. Three pedestrians were injured by the Ford.

RED CROSS CLASSES OPEN LECTURE SERIES

Red Cross first aid community classes tomorrow at 6 p. m. at the First Baptist Church, Bellefield and Bayard streets, will begin a series of approximately 12 sessions of lectures, clinics and demonstrations, preparing men and women to cope scientifically with first aid problems, accident or sudden illness. Classes, non-sectarian and open to the public, are especially for those unable to attend week day sessions. A short vesper service usually precedes class work.

Section 2. That any ordinance or part of ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this ordinance.

CITY OF PITTSBURGH,
PENNSYLVANIA.

Notice of Sale of Bonds

Sealed proposals will be received at the office of the City Controller of the City of Pittsburgh until the 6th day of March, 1928, at 10:00 a. m., for the purchase of $125,000 ELECTRIC TRAFFIC CONTROL SIGNAL BONDS, 1928.

Said bonds will be dated as of February 1, 1928, and will mature in ten (10) equal annual installments on February 1st of each year from 1929 to 1938, inclusive. Said bonds will bear interest at the rate of four and one-quarter per centum (4¼%) per annum, payable semi-annually on the first days of February and August in each year without deduction for any taxes which may be levied thereon by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania pursuant to any present or future law.

Said bonds will be coupon bonds of the denomination of One Thousand Dollars ($1,000) and Five Hundred Dollars ($500), exchangeable at the option of the holder at any time for a registered bond or bonds of the same maturity and of the denomination of One Hundred Dollars ($100) or a multiple thereof not exceeding the aggregate principal amount of the coupon bond or bonds surrendered in exchange therefor.

Unless all bids are rejected the said bonds will be sold to the highest responsible bidder complying with the terms of sale. No bid for said bonds at less than par and accrued interest from the date of said bonds to the date of delivery will be accepted. The right is reserved to reject all bids and any bid not complying with the provisions hereof will be rejected.

All bidders are required to deposit a certified check drawn to the order of the City of Pittsburgh, on a National Bank or Trust Company for two per centum (2%) of the principal amount of bonds bid for. Checks of unsuccessful bidders will be returned upon the award of the bonds. No interest will be allowed upon the amount of the check of the successful bidder and such check will be retained and applied in part payment for the bonds or to secure the City against any loss resulting from the failure of the bidder to comply with the terms of his bid.

Proposals should be addressed to John H. Henderson, City Controller, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, and enclosed in a sealed envelope, marked on the outside "Proposal for Bonds." Bids must be made upon blank forms which may be obtained from the City Controller.

The successful bidder will be furnished with the opinion of Messrs. Reed, Smith, Shaw & McClay, of Pittsburgh, that the bonds are binding and legal obligations of the City of Pittsburgh.

JOHN H. HENDERSON,
City Controller.

Dated Pittsburgh, Pa., February 18, 1928.

NOTICE is hereby given that ordinance, copy of which is published herewith, was introduced in the Council of the City of Pittsburgh on January 23, 1928, pursuant to the provisions of the several acts of Assembly authorizing said City, without any petition of property owners, to open, widen, straighten, extend, vacate, grade, pave, curb, macadamize and otherwise improve streets and alleys, or parts thereof, within its limits, viz:

BILL NO. 245.

AN ORDINANCE opening Iroquois way, in the Fourth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from Coltart avenue to the westerly line of the McKee Place Plan of Lots, establishing the grade thereof and providing that the costs, damages and expenses occasioned thereby be assessed against and collected from properties benefited thereby.

Section 1—Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That Iroquois way, in the Fourth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from Coltart avenue to the westerly line of the McKee Place Plan of Lots, be and the same is hereby opened to a uniform width of 20 feet by taking for public use for highway purposes all of the following described property, to-wit:

I WISH WE COULD GET AWAY FROM HERE WITHOUT OFFENDING GEORGE AND JOSEPHINE AND GO TO A HOTEL. I KNOW FROM WHAT SHE SAYS THAT YOU'VE SAID OR DONE SOMETHING TO PUT THEM IN A BAD HUMOR.
I, SWEET, I? WHY I MADE UP MY MIND THAT YOU ARE THE ONE WHO DID THAT.
I KNOW POSITIVELY THAT THEY DON'T LIKE THE WAY YOU ACT AT THE TABLE. I SAW JOSEPHINE NUDGE GEORGE LAST EVENING WHEN YOU LEANED AWAY OVER TO TAKE THE LAST PORKCHOP ON THE PLATTER.
MABEL, I PARK AT A TABLE TO EAT. NOT TO ACT AS IF I WAS TRYING TO PASS A TOUGH EXAMINATION ON ETIQUETTE.
ANOTHER BIG FAULT IS THAT YOU'RE ALWAYS TALKING ABOUT IMPORTANT AMOUNTS OF MONEY. GEORGE IS NOTHING TO RAVE ABOUT BUT HE DOESN'T BRAG ALL THE TIME.
HE SURE PUTS ON DOG ABOUT HIS INVENTIONS. ANY ONE WOULD THINK, TO LISTEN TO GEORGE, THAT THOMAS EDISON WAS JUST ONE OF HIS ALIASES.
WELL HENRY WE'VE JUST GOT OFF ON THE WRONG FOOT WITH BOTH OF THEM, AND I DON'T BLAME THEM FOR WEARING A LONG FACE EVER SINCE WE ARRIVED.
I THINK THEY BOTH MEAN WELL. THEIR ONLY TOPIC OF CONVERSATION APPEARS TO BE THE HIGH COST OF LIVING BUT I'M GENEROUS ENOUGH TO ADMIT THEY COULD BE WORSE.

BUGS BAER Says

THE candidates are gradually getting their platforms into shape. From now until November we should get plenty of hay-wire information.

One southwestern applicant for a seat on the government aisle states that he wants to be President in order to abolish football.

He says football is brutal and when he is the first citizen in our suburban booms he will veto it.

ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER.

He is defeated on the first ballot. We hereby make him Vice President to a truant officer.

Another national kibitzer announces that he is for a boatless navy.

That's no way to get the sailor vote. We are about to spend three billion spinners for a new navy. Another billion goes for the army.

We like men who sing at their work.

But we don't want to hear the boys who engrave our money in the Treasury singing, "The Army and Navy Forever."

The oldest living Boy Scout, who is indorsed by the post-graduate morons and has the financial support of the stockholders in Ponzi's prosperous schemes, is against dancing, smoking, spooning and laughing.

That ain't a platform.

That's a trap-door.

We hereby donate him one national costume of Nicaragua.

And hope he is wearing it when a near-sighted marine staggers by.

We used to ask a politician what he stood for. And how long he would stand for it.

Now, we don't want to know what he is for.

We want to know what he is against.

If he favors nothing, objects to everything and demands investigations, we know he is a good man because he admits it.

But the man we vote for must be better than that. He must make faces at babies, pull the wings off humming birds and throw paper weights at violets.

That's our choice for candidate because the men we have voted for in the last 20 years have always been defeated and we want to keep our record clean.

Norris Should Press For Power Lobby Probe

The Senate, by defeating the Walsh resolution for a thoroughgoing investigation by the Senate of the financing and other aspects of the public utility companies of the United States, still finds itself faced with the other side of this great issue.

That issue is the lobby conducted by these power companies—the most formidable lobby ever to raise its head in the national capital, the most dangerous to the free institutions of this country.

And so we must congratulate and encourage Senator Norris of Nebraska who, on the very day of the defeat of the Walsh resolution, proposes that the Senate now go immediately into a thorough probing of this lobby.

As a matter of fact, the activity of the power lobby is for the moment as important a matter for investigation as the financing of the companies behind the lobby.

Senator Norris has the initial support of fellow Senators on both sides of the political fence, and if the Senate is to protect its own good name and dignity, this support must necessarily grow at once to such proportions that the projected investigation will follow.

Senator Norris and those who support him for an immediate study of the power lobby situation in Washington will do more to remove suspicion of the Senate's action on the Walsh resolution than any amount of ''explaining.''

There is an immediate need for this lobby investigation and there is need for a most ENERGETIC and thoroughgoing investigation.

Senator Walsh of Massachusetts, meanwhile has suggested another resolution to require paid lobbyists to register, state the nature of their business, and tell who is hiring them.

He would also empower committee chairmen to require all who appear for or against pending bills to say by whom they are employed, if by anybody. Any committee member could require employers of lobbyists to appear, give names of all lobbyists employed by them, and account for all sums spent or promised in connection with such lobbying. The Senate by majority vote could require the same publicity.

Such a measure should, by all means, be adopted.

But meanwhile the plan of Senator Norris for an investigation of the power lobby should be adopted and vigorously prosecuted.

To Real Fan Season Opens When Team's Off to Train

Though February weather persists in inflicting its cranky temper upon patient humanity, though Congress be in session wrestling with everything from a Heflin complex to the coal strike probe, though politicians look askance at each other while they consider whether to go on calling one another pals or stick a knife in the back, though men and women continue to marry and fight and become food for the divorce mill, though the marines combat outlaws in Nicaragua, though corns and boils and toothaches are as prevalent as ever, the baseball fan is having his first spasm of happiness of the year.

The first contingent of the Pirates is on its way to training camp and that marks the opening of the season to the baseball rooter of the dyed-in-the-wool type. He doesn't have to hear the umpire's "play ball" at the first league game to feel his heart bobbing like the chest of a movie queen in an emotional scene

For the real baseball fan the season is open now. And, of course, he will follow the doings of his favorite Pirates through the columns of The Sun-Telegraph, whose "war correspondent,'' Chilly Doyle, will keep him posted on the interesting and pertinent details of the training season.

Man's Amazing Brain

A Telegrapher's Feat

Professors were amazed by a telegraph operator who with his RIGHT ear to the instrument listened to an incoming message, decoded and typed it, using both hands, and at the same time carried on a telephone conversation, with receiver held to the LEFT ear by a support.

That telegraph operator has taught different parts of his brain to do separate specialized work, one part listening, directing the nerves controlling the muscles that controlled the typewriting.

Another part of the brain listened to the telephone, directing the nerves that control speech, and carrying on a conversation.

The human being of the future, a few million years hence, with the billions of cells in his brain thoroughly trained, will be a complicated individual, one ear perhaps for the radio, one for the telephone, both together for household conversation. One eye for the microscope, one for the telescope, both together for ordinary life.

And that would be only a beginning.

Need Talent's Best Spur

The charming heiress to an unexpected fortune whose ambition is to write thinks that she can now do it ''just exactly as she pleases.''

Alas, there is no such complete independence anywhere in the world.

Probably every author has had this dream. But the great writing, the writing that has lived, has always come at the prodding of necessity.

To do good writing one must have approval. To get approval one must do good writing. That is true, no matter what the income.

The fact that you don't have to write for pay doesn't of itself insure inspiration. It is likelier to fill your days with so many diversions that you never reach the inspirational stage.

The spur of need is still our best quickener of talent.

New York Day by Day

by O.O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Chinatown as gray dusk sifts softening shadows becomes somewhat panther-like. Its attitude seems crouching and visitors are eyed coldly. Slippered figures no longer shuffle along. They dart quickly in and out the mean narrow streets.

Policemen always grip their clubs a trifle firmly during the hour when Chinatown is emerging from light to darkness. For sun down is the time when the tongs strike. In the twinkling of an eye sawed-off shotguns may be blazing death.

Chinatown, despite long periods of peace, has never been conquered by Occidental laws. Its surface may appear smooth, but underneath it tosses and turns like a fever-racked patient. Always in the hidden catacombs are sinister plotters.

In other districts in New York the police have their subtle ways of learning in advance of gambling and bootlegging wars and other outbreaks causing bloodshed. But Chinatown is inscrutible. It has always been able to turn away suspicion with a seraphic gaze.

It has often happened a policeman will find himself talking to a tong leader several blocks away at the precise moment the Chinatown causeways are erupting their warriors. The battles are over in a few minutes. The dead in the street are the only mute evidence when police arrive.

Hundreds may be rounded into police stations, but the police axiom endures: "A Chinaman never squeals." He is blandly impervious to questioning resorting usually to the ancient alibi he does not understand English.

For forty years Chinatown has had an average of one tong war a year. Some are mere skirmishes and others run the streets red with blood. Pact after pact for peace has been signed with public dinners and hearty huzzahs. But the volcanic hatred has never been stilled.

The moods of New York are volatile and no other city seems so affected by weather. Today, for instance, is one of those sullen zinc gray days with a low-hanging mist. In three shops I noticed clerks showed no interest in making a sale. Pedestrians seemed to slouch along the streets and at a luncheon place everybody seemed to be sulking. To add to the gloom, there came those depressing blasts of fog horns from the river. But on a bright sunny morning New York seems to awaken and stretch like a playful kitten. There is a lightness to the pedestrian's step. Truckmen whistle and policemen indulge pleasant banter. Weather is a fine thing. A columnist can always stir up a paragraph about it.

The chairman of the board of a big organization will never hold a directors' meeting on a drab day. He says pessimism is so pronounced it often results in decisions that are not only bad for the organization, but result in financial loss.

As the elevated trains wend a serpentine path down Ninth avenue, passengers are afforded a view of how the other half lives. Ninth avenue lives upstairs over shops and stores and windows are not always curtained. There is a flashing peep of mantle clocks, huge flowered wallpaper, combination bed and dining rooms, geranium pots on window sills, flaring gas jets, mothers rocking soap-box cradles and tired men sprawling on beds. It hasn't the squalor of the East Side tenements nor the ineffable despair. Ninth avenue somehow suggests a rugged fighting spirit of a people determined for better things. They make the best of poverty, but are not going permanently to submit to it.

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

In the Beginning

I hand you this nut to crack. In Genesis we read that "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth." When was the beginning and how did "God" come into existence to do the creating, and what material did He use? Did He create something out of nothing?—A. D. C.

I DO not see that it would be more difficult for God to create something out of nothing than for something to create itself out of nothing. You seem to me to have, like many others, a grudge against the name God, or against the idea represented by that word. The fact is that this name was invented to cover a blind spot in the mind. Get over that blind spot safely and everything becomes logical, and explicable on the basis of human experience.

The writer of "Genesis," whoever he may have been, appears to me as a very level-headed and judicious person. He produced an account of creation that was perfectly logical all through to the people of his time, for they were unaware of the blind spot that had been covered. They never dreamed of questioning him about the beginning and the power of God. And still today, in its broad outline, if we accept the idea of God's agency simply as a postulate, the Genesis story of creation is logical enough. It is scientific enough, too, for when science undertakes to account for the beginning of the world, it is troubled by that same blind spot, that same unfathomable black pit of pure ignorance, and if it objects to bridging it with God, it has to bridge it with some other postulate much less capable of being comprehended.

You can, of course, if you prefer, consider that the world and the universe came into existence through their own innate principle of being; or that they have always been in existence. You can assume that there is no intelligence higher than man's, and no need for any. But such thought will not "get you anywhere," and I do not believe that you, yourself, can remain content with them.

As to the material out of which "the heaven and the earth" were created, the writer of "Genesis" made a remarkably close approach to the modern idea of the nebular state of matter. Or, perhaps we might put it the other way around and say that modern scientific speculation approached remarkably close to the idea of the writer of "Genesis" when it developed the nebular hypothesis.

The underlying idea in the "Genesis" story of creation is that at first the world was "without form and void," void meaning possessed of no definite structure. If you take your telescope one of these bright winter evenings and look up at the constellation Orion, you will see, hanging below the "belt" formed by three bright stars in a row, a misty looking object, which a higher telescopic power reveals as the celebrated "Great Nebula in Orion." A photograph of that nebula would serve excellently for a frontispiece to an illustrated edition of the Book of Genesis. Our science today testifies that the writer of that book at least began his story of creation at the right end.

He makes no attempt to account for the existence of God any more than he does to account for the "something"—he makes no reference to an original "nothing"—out of which the first formless state of the world was produced. With the exception of the postulate of God, he deals with nothing but matter at every step of the story. Once started with his account of creation he is as material as the materialists themselves. He shows that everything has a substantial original and a determining cause. When God is represented as making man, he takes "dust of the earth," not "nothing," out of which to make him. When science is able to explain thought it may be in a position to demand that religion shall explain God.

Planes' and Cars' Life

IT IS interesting to compare the life of an airplane with the life of an automobile.

Lindy has flown 40,000 miles in The Spirit of St. Louis, and thinks it could do 120,000 miles with care. The visiting French fliers, Costes and Lebrix, have done 68,000 miles in their Nungesser-Coli.

Motor cars with a record of 100,000 miles are rare; the average car's use is not more than a third as much.

When we consider how many more cars than planes have been built the success of the planes is a high tribute to aeronautic engineering as well as to the gallant pilots.

Company Manners

IF you have one manner for the members of your family and another for outsiders, your children will notice it.

They will think you deceitful and it will be hard to teach them to be honest in what they say.

Parents who frequently change from a scolding, irritable manner to one of courtesy and of affability as soon as guests arrive, should expect their children to deceive them.

The childish mind cannot understand why a principle, good for themselves, is not the best one for their elders.

And they are pretty right about it.

Children would not need so many corrections if their parents were not so often in the wrong.

The mother who tells a falsehood over the telephone to avoid doing something she is asked to do, will be lied to by her children.

The father who is cross and irritable, except before guests, will see his manners reflected in those of his children, at home and with their playmates.

Tales That Are Told

Where He Drew the Line

MR. GILTSTOCK had made his pile and, as was only natural, decided that he must live in a better and bigger house; also, this house had to be built by the best architect to be found.

In due course the architect arrived with a batch of elaborate plans, which he explained to the merchant prince.

"Now the only thing to settle, Mr. Giltstock," he concluded, "is the music-room. Where do you want the music-room to be?"

But Mr. Giltstock laid a firm hand on the desk.

"Look here," he said decisively, "I must draw the line somewhere. You've made plans for a smoking-room when I don't smoke at all; a study which I'll never use because I've nothing to study; a nursery when I haven't got a nurse; and a pantry when I never pant; and I'm blowed if I'm going to let you put up a music-room when I can't even play a note on a mouth-organ!"—London Answers.

That Was That!

THE organ-blower of a country church had passed his allotted span but still had a will of his own, and was very annoyed when the new organist informed him that the first hymn on Christmas Day was to be one which for some reason the old man disliked.

Relating the fact to a crony in the Goat and Compass on Christmas eve, he recalled how he and his father before him had blown the organ for over 100 years, and that one particular hymn had always been played first on Christmas Day. After expressing himself very forcibly on the matter, he wound up by saying:

"Well, 'e can play what 'e likes, but I be going to blow 'While Shepherds.' "—London Tit-Bits.

The Comic Strip

By DR. FRANK CRANE

A recent article on ''The Compensatory Function of the Sunday 'Funny Paper,' '' by Harvey C. Lehman and Paul A. Witty, is at hand.

It gives a very ingenious explanation for the popularity of the comic strip. It gives as a trait of character in almost every one the desire to ''escape.''

''In the world of 'actuality,' '' it continues, ''the child is obliged to conform to certain conventions, to treat other persons with a reasonable amount of decorum, to abide by the consequences of his acts when he defies natural law or human authority. In the 'funnies' he will defy every law and he will do so with impunity.

"Thus the child who looks at the Sunday 'funnies' is enabled to identify himself with the most intrepid adventurer or the most resolute law-defying citizen or the capturer of such a criminal. On the other hand, he may identify himself with the serial-motion-picture type of hero who wins out over apparently insuperable odds."

All of us are aware of constant limitations in our ordinary life. We are unable to thwart these constrictions, so we seek numerous and varied forms of gratification of our impulses.

Certainly the comic strip does not excel in showing actual life conditions nor in its artistic quality. It only suggests human characteristics in exaggerated form, but they are naively and crudely presented and so direct and unmistakable that even the most obtuse cannot fail to recognize them.

The pamphlet says that in the Sunday funny section the child often takes many risks which in real life he would not think of taking.

"In some cases he succeeds by resort to magic. At other times he is pictured as falling squarely upon the face or being severely burned with fire or scalding water. He falls at a great distance or he is closely pursued by dangerous wild animals. He knows no decorum. He puts his cigar ashes into an upturned silk hat, or into the gold-fish bowl. He rests his feet on his neighbor's lap.

"He endures no suppression. He has complete freedom of self-expression."

This is at least an ingenious explanation of the popularity of the comic strip, as the value of any entertainment, theatrical or otherwise, is its escape value.

Right Angles

By ALEXANDER CAIRNS

A Worth-While Idea

I KNOW one place where inspiration blossoms on the bushes and dangles in festoons from the trees, and brushes against one like the over-arching alders in a lover's lane.

That place is the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. I sat in the neglected corner of their chapel last fall upon the occasion of their opening convocation.

Everything said from the platform had been cribbed from some Sinai or Pisgah or Olympus and I felt like old Rip Van Winkle awakening from dead pedagogical forms into a renaissance of the stuff that made the Age of Pericles famous.

But the highlight of the occasion was a message from President Chase, who was overseas taking the pedagogical dimensions of the Oxfords and Cambridges of Europe. His word to the students was:

"Get some worth-while idea which has no relation to money making."

How's that for a Tunney blow to the solar plexus of modern materialism! Mammon went down and took the count on that chapel rostrum that day.

There is a brand new animal often seen on the modern campus.

He is the uncultured alumnus.

That seems a paradox. Can one possibly go through a collegiate quadrennium and come out with a sheepskin sans culture? Yes, absolutely!

This pedagogical monstrosity has a cynicism as hard as Vulcan's anvil. He is vulgar in thought and habit and has less honor than Judas Iscariot. He acquires a parlor veneer which links him with Iago.

Get one idea not in the ritual of the worship of the golden calf. Learn why Diogenes preferred a tub Pullman to a palace boudoir; or catch the divinity of some transcendent soul who died vicariously in a Thermopylae Pass; or find the sermon as well as the stamens in a tulip or a marigold; or search for God with a telescope, or love with a microscope; or tap the reservoir of humanity that immortalized Lincoln.

It would be a joy to hear President Chase elaborate his text for a transfigured hour. And for a setting, that chapel.

Reassurance

IN time's due course all blossoms meant for you
Will greet your eyes. . . why should you be afraid
That life can cheat you of one jassamine,
One rose-bud glowing red?

So much of joy the far years hold in trust
And nothing shall defraud you of the right
That waited you while you were dreamless dust,
Asleep in time's long night.

Oh, foolish, doubting heart, forget your fears;
This rose was yours when earth first spun in space;
Your course was charted with the new-made spheres,
Your service and your place!
